Debra Martin is the Lincy Professor of Anthropology at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas. Her interests are centered on biocultural approaches to understanding violence in human groups, and she has carried out extensive bioarchaeological investigations in the American Southwest. Her recent books include New Directions in Biocultural Anthropology (with Molly Zuckerman), Bodies and Lives, Health in Ancient America, and Bioarcheology of Women and Children in Times of War. She is the editor of KIVA and recipient of the AAA/Oxford Press Distinguished Teaching Award.