BDIC FACULTY SPONSORS

All BDIC sponsors must be full-time faculty with the rank of professor, associate professor, assistant professor, instructor, or lecturer at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst during the entire term of their sponsorship. Staff members and graduate students, regardless of their other campus responsibilities, are ineligible. Co-sponsors might be necessary when (a) the concentration spans two widely disparate disciplines such as “Environmental Legal Studies,” (b) when the best sponsor is at another campus, or (c) when the best sponsor is a staff member at the University without academic rank.

Sponsors are an integral part of a student's BDIC program. The primary function of a sponsor is to serve as the student's chief advisor. The sponsor should take an active interest in the student and also be available as an advisor for the duration of the student's program. The sponsor's expertise must coincide with the student's area of interest. This expertise is essential when advising on course selections, graduate school possibilities and professional opportunities.

BDIC sponsors are asked to:

1. Read and sign the student's BDIC proposal
2. Discuss and sign all relevant independent study/practicum contracts
3. Read and sign the Senior Summary
