Andrew Carnegie Fellows Program

Overview:

The purpose of the Andrew Carnegie Fellows Program is to support high-caliber scholarship in the social sciences and humanities, making it possible for recipients to devote time to research and writing that addresses pressing issues and cultural transitions affecting us at home and abroad.

UMass Amherst has been invited to nominate: one junior (max. of 10 years out from Ph.D.) and one senior scholar for this award.

Eligibility:

- Andrew Carnegie fellowships are open only to citizens or permanent residents of the U.S.

Award Background:

- Award Amount: $200,000 over 1 or 2 years
- Number of Awards: Up to 35
- Number of UMass Amherst Nominees: 2

- Successful proposals will fall within the realm of the following topics. More detailed descriptions of these topics can be found here.
  - Global connections and global ruptures
  - Strengthening U.S. democracy and exploring new narratives
  - Environments, natural and human
  - Technological and cultural creativity-potential and perils
- Fellowships may be used to support such expenses as salary, fringe benefits, project-related travel, research assistants, and translators.
- Directory of Past Awardees - We strongly recommend reviewing past awards to determine competitiveness.
