Digital Government: Westchester County, NY & the Role of the CIO

Thursday, April 12, 2007; 12pm-1pm
Computer Science Building, Room 151
with Norman J. Jacknis, CIO, Westchester County

Dr. Jacknis will describe Westchester County’s efforts to utilize the World Wide Web to reach out to various constituents. He will describe recent digital government initiatives in the fields of public safety, emergency management, public health, education, public recreation, & economic development. He will discuss how the web has been used to promote efficient & fair markets, to coordinate between public and non-profit agencies, and to enhance citizen-county communication related to government decision-making processes. Dr. Jacknis will also discuss and entertain questions related to the role of a CIO at his level of government and the policy and management implications of web and other new digital technologies.
