NCATE NEWS

In the upcoming issues of The Beacon we will be including news about NCATE. We hope you will find the information helpful.

INTRODUCTION TO NCATE’S STANDARDS

The NCATE standards are the basis for the assessment of the unit conducted by the Board of Examiners team. The standards are divided into two sections, candidate performance (Standards 1 and 2) and unit capacity (Standards 3–6). Each of the six NCATE standards contains three components: (1) the language of the standard itself; (2) rubrics that delineate the elements of each standard and describe three proficiency levels at which each element is being addressed; and (3) a descriptive explanation of the standard. The standards apply to both initial teacher preparation and advanced levels. One of the most significant aspects of the NCATE standards is the conceptual framework. The conceptual framework is the underlying structure of the unit that sets forth a vision of the unit and provides a theoretical and empirical foundation for the direction of programs, courses, teaching, candidate performance, faculty scholarship and service, and unit accountability.

The candidate performance standards focus on learning outcomes. They require units to use evidence to demonstrate that teacher candidates are gaining the knowledge, skills, and dispositions necessary to have a positive impact on P–12 student learning. The standards elevate the role of assessment in program improvement and promote increased accountability for teacher candidate learning. They require systemic assessment, which encourages more attention to program design, increased faculty collaboration, and greater alignment within and between programs. Finally, the candidate performance standards necessitate that teacher education programs engage in self-assessment and continuous improvement.

The unit capacity standards address the components of teacher education programs that support candidate learning. They promote increased university and school partnership in the design and implementation of clinical experiences. They require the provision of curricular content and experiences that promote diversity within the teaching profession and encourage an understanding of issues related to diversity in P–12 settings. In addition, they emphasize the need for well-qualified faculty who model best practices in teaching. Further, they address governance and resource expectations. Together the candidate performance and unit capacity standards present a strong statement about the organization and management of effective education programs for teachers and other school personnel.

FACULTY/ STAFF/ STUDENT ACTIVITIES, HONORS, AND AWARDS

Sharon Rallis, the Director of the Center for Education Policy in the School of Education at the University of Massachusetts Amherst and the Dwight W. Allen Professor of Education Policy and Reform, was one of the two invited speakers at the 37th annual conference of the Northeastern Educational Research Association, held October 18-20, 2006 at the Hudson Valley Resort and Spa in Kerhonkson, NY. The theme of the conference was Scientifically-based Research: Will it Really Help us Reform Education?

EPRA’s 2006 Fall Educational Policy Forum will be held on December 4, 2006 at 1:00 pm in Hills South 373. Senator Stan Rosenberg will address the topic of “Funding Higher Education: Can Massachusetts Do Better?” The event is open to the public and refreshments will be served.

Sonia Nieto, Emerita Professor of Education, gave the keynote address on “Affirming Diversity: The Sociopolitical Context of Multicultural Education” at the “Teachers of Color and Allies Summit” held at the University of Colorado at Boulder on November 9, 2006.

On Thursday, November 16, a conference titled "Promising Policies & Practices: Education for Advanced, Talented & Creative Learners in Western Massachusetts" brought together approximately 120 Massachusetts K-12 educators to discuss prospects and strategies for gifted/talented education with Massachusetts Commissioner of Education David Driscoll, President of the National Association for Gifted Children Joyce VanTassel-Baska, and leading practitioners. Nola Stephen and Andy Effrat led this effort, and the conference was supported by the Massachusetts Department of Education’s Javits Gifted and Talented funding. Joyce VanTassel-Baska, a nationally renowned expert on gifted and talented education, was the keynote speaker; Commissioner David Driscoll discussed the latest developments at the state level. Leading practitioners of gifted and talented education addressed identification issues, program models, and classroom practices; conference attendees began developing an advanced, talented, and creative education network in Western Massachusetts.

Congratulations to Professor Emeritus G. Ernest Anderson, who received a Lifetime Achievement Award from the Connecticut Educators Computer Association on October 23. Ernie’s career in telecommunications started 63 years ago as a telegraph operator with Western Union. He went on to become the founder and president of what is now the International Society for Technology in Education, with 20,000 members and affiliates worldwide. A certificate signed by Connecticut Governor Jodi Rell officially proclaimed October 23, 2006 as “G. Ernest Anderson Day for the State of Connecticut.”
