Standard 3: Field Experience and Clinical Practice

Supporting Explanation:
Field experiences and clinical practice are integral program components for the initial and advanced preparation of teacher candidates and candidates for other school personnel roles. They provide the opportunity for candidates to apply their knowledge, skills, and dispositions in a variety of settings appropriate to the content and level of their program. Designed and sequenced well, they help candidates develop the competence necessary to begin or continue careers as teachers or other school professionals. Student teaching or an internship is the culminating experience for teacher candidates at the baccalaureate, post-baccalaureate, or master's level. Candidates preparing for new roles such as special education teachers or prince pals or school psychologists at the graduate level are expected by their profession to complete internships as part of their preparation programs. Licensed teachers who are continuing their education in advanced programs often use their own classrooms or schools for field experiences.

Field experiences and clinical practice are characterized by collaboration, accountability, and an environment and practices associated with professional learning. Field experiences represent a variety of early and ongoing school-based opportunities in which candidates may observe, assist, tutor, instruct, or conduct applied research. Clinical practice includes student teaching and internships that provide candidates with experiences that allow for full development.

immersion in the learning community so that candidates are able to demonstrate proficiencies in the professional roles for which they are preparing. Clinical practice provides for candidates’ use of information technology to support teaching, learning, and other professional responsibilities. The unit and school partners collaboratively design and implement field experiences and clinical practice, including the assessment of candidate performance. School and university faculty share the responsibility for candidate learning. The partners share and integrate resources and expertise to create roles and structures that support and create opportunities for candidates to learn. The partners select and prepare clinical faculty to mentor and supervise teacher candidates.

Accountability for clinical practice includes (1) the application of both entry and exit requirements for candidates; (2) candidates’ demonstration of content, pedagogical, and professional knowledge aligned with standards; (3) candidates’ demonstration of proficiencies in early field experiences; (4) candidates’ application of the skills, knowledge, and dispositions defined by the unit, including the capacity to have a positive effect on P–12 student learning; and (5) candidates’ demonstration of skills for working with colleagues, parents and families, and communities. The unit and its school partners use diverse assessment approaches to evaluate candidates.

Candidates are expected to study and practice in a variety of settings that include diverse populations, students with exceptionalities, and students of different ages. They are placed in clinical settings at grade levels and in the subjects or school roles (e.g., counselor) for which they are preparing. Candidate learning is integrated into the clinical setting. Scheduling, use of time, and resources support clinical faculty and allow candidates to participate as teachers, professional educators, and learners in the school setting.

THE WOMEN OF COLOR LEADERSHIP NETWORK

Women Who Make a Difference Award

The Women of Color Leadership Network (WOCLN) of the University of Massachusetts Amherst invites you to recognize women who make a difference in the lives of women of color. Please take the time to nominate a woman who has made a difference to you or someone you know for this campus-wide award.

The woman can be a student, staff or faculty on the UMass Amherst campus whose contributions you consider have made a difference in the lives of women of color, but she does not have to be a woman of color.

To nominate a woman, please submit your nominations by April 4, 2007 to the WOCLN, 202 Wilder Hall, UMass Amherst. Attn.: Hind Mari.

Nomination letters should not exceed two pages, and should include the names and contact information of three references who support the nomination. To be eligible for the award, the nomination must be received by WOCLN no later than 5 PM on April 4th. Following the receipt of the nominations, the Board of Advisors of WOCLN will review the nominations and select the woman who fulfills the spirit of the award. The recipient of the award will be notified by April 20th. The award ceremony will be part of the WOCLN’s end of the year reception that is held on Thursday May 10, 2007.

Eligibility: The nominee has to be a woman who is an active member of the UMass community as a student, staff or faculty at the time of nomination.

Selection Criteria:
The nominee must: demonstrate her dedication to improving the status of women of color on campus through mentoring, advocacy, and leadership, receive endorsement by three additional people, whose contact information is included in the nomination letter, be actively involved in working as a mentor with women of color on this campus.

Journal of International and Intercultural Communication

New Journal for 2008! A publication of the National Communication Association

Journal of International and Intercultural Communication (http://www.tandf.co.uk/journals/rjii) will publish scholarship for an international readership on international and intercultural communication from a range of theoretical, conceptual and methodological perspectives. The journal features leading edge inquiry that cuts across academic boundaries to focus on international, intercultural, as well as indigenous communication issues. It invites manuscripts that not only address pressing issues in multiple regions, multilingual communities, social, political, and cultural practices from the standpoint of communication, but it also invites manuscripts that push the boundaries of contemporary work in international and intercultural communication. A nation-state should not necessarily be synonymous with a single culture as nation-states might be more productively viewed as comprising multiple cultures, nor should a culture be thought of as bounded by national boundaries, as cultures may cross the boundaries of multiple nation-states. International and intercultural communication, from interpersonal interaction to mass media, should be considered in the context of contemporary tensions, including globalization, post colonialism, cultural imperialism, and more. Theoretical, historical, experiential, experimental, as well as critical, discursive and textual analyses are welcome.

Initial questions relating to the submission process may be addressed to:

2007 UNH COMPOSITION CONFERENCE
CALL FOR PAPERS

The University of New Hampshire is offering a composition conference on October 12-13, 2007 with keynotes Ellen Cushman (Michigan State University), Paul Kei Matsuda (University of New Hampshire), Gwendolyn D. Pough (Syracuse University) and Stuart Selber (Penn State University). The theme of the conference is Literacies—Personal, Professional, Academic. The focus will be on exploring literacy as it is learned inside and outside of school, and its multiple uses.

We invite proposals for 75-minute concurrent sessions. Sessions can be proposed by an individual or a group of presenters. We prefer interactive sessions and hope to avoid the reading of papers. Among the possible topics to be addressed are: literacy, technology and accessibility; multi-media literacies; virtual reading and writing communities; non-school sponsors of literacy; literacy norms and second language learners; literacy and popular culture; and new discourse conventions in academic writing.

Proposals should include: Session Title; Proposal Type (individual or group); Complete contact information of each presenter including name, address, daytime phone and email address; A 400-word session description as well as a 50-word summary.

For more information visit: http://www.unh.edu/composition/conference

Send to: UNH English Department, Attn: Composition Conference, 95 Main Street, Durham, NH 03824
Postmark deadline: Monday, May 14, 2007

GLOBAL HORIZONS SPRING 2007 WORKSHOPS

The workshops are not only free for K-12 teachers but we now offer a $20 stipend to participants to cover costs of travel and time. Lunch is included. 10 PDPs available per day.

March 31st – Games and Simulations: Tools for teaching Global Education Part 2 (part 1 is not a requirement, all are welcome) Games and simulations are a great way to make history and social studies come alive. This workshop is an introduction for using them in the classroom. Participants will learn several games for teaching global education and then will create role-playing games and simulations for their own classes.

April 7th – The Enduring Legacy of Ancient China: Making China come alive in the classroom: Designed by Primary Source, this workshop will include a presentation on traditional China and its modern relevance. Participants will learn how to teach about China with primary sources (such as the sayings of Confucius) and make cross-cultural connections.

April 14th - Tools for Coaching and Mentoring International Students: This workshop will enhance the abilities of participants to coach and mentor international students in their classrooms. Role plays and group discussion will be used to explore the spectrum of opportunities available to and challenges faced by diverse student populations.

April 15th – Cross-Cultural Communication in Multicultural Classrooms: This workshop is designed to promote the sharing and appreciation of different cultures, countries, and people within diverse classrooms. Participants will develop skills of intercultural communication and understanding both across and within nations around the world.

Please note that the workshops will feature lesson plans, classroom resources, or teaching aids on the various topics that can be used as a supplement to teachers’ curricula.

The workshops will take place from 9am to approximately 3pm at 275 Hills South at UMass.

"THE WIND THAT SHAKES THE BARLEY"

The Department of Student Development and Pupil Personnel Services in the School of Education is proud to sponsor the area premier showing of "The Wind That Shakes The Barley", directed by Ken Loach. This film won the prestigious Palm D’Or award at the Cannes Film Festival in 2006.

With beautiful cinematography, Loach’s film is a gritty, realistic, and unvarnished depiction of the IRA’s fight for Irish independence and its subsequent tragic aftermath, the Irish Civil War.

"I can think of no better way of redeeming this tragic world today than love and laughter. Too many of the young have forgotten how to laugh, and too many of the elders have forgotten how to love. Would not our lives be lightened if only we could all learn to laugh more easily at ourselves and to love one another?"

-- Theodore Hesburgh

Hesburgh served as a member of the United States Civil Rights Commission from 1957, and Chairman from 1969, until his dismissal by President Nixon in 1972. He also served in a number of other posts on government commissions, non-profit organization boards, and Vatican missions. He was one of the founders of People for the American Way.

Professor William Matthews, who has lectured both in the U.S. and in Ireland on this period of Irish history, will provide an introduction to the events and characters depicted in the film. Following the film there will be an opportunity for questions and discussion.

Prior to the film there will be a traditional Irish seisuin (music). Refreshments will also be served.

This event is free and open to the University community and to the public. Please join us for what promises to be a fascinating look at this critical period of Irish history.

When: April 4, 2007
Where: Campus Center room 101
Time: Music 6:30 pm
