Sonia Nieto, professor emerita of Teacher Education and Curriculum Studies, was awarded an honorary doctorate by DePaul University’s school of education during its commencement ceremony on June 16.

Nieto, who was the keynote speaker at the ceremony, is considered a leading expert on diversity issues in education, she studies multicultural education, the education of Latinos, immigrants and other culturally and linguistically diverse students, and Puerto Rican children’s literature. She has written numerous book chapters and articles on these issues, and her articles have appeared in such journals as Educational Leadership, Theory into Practice, The Harvard Educational Review, and Multicultural Education.

The honorary degree is the third for Nieto, who was previously recognized by Lesley University and Bridgewater State College.

CALL FOR NEWS

If you know of a student, faculty or staff member, who has been honored with an award or is involved in an interesting activity, please email Linda Neas at llascell@educ.umass.edu. Thank you for your assistance!

BEACON DEADLINE: Please submit Beacon announcements to: Room 123A Furcolo Hall or to llascell@educ.umass.edu. The deadline remains 3:30 p.m. on Monday. All assistantships will run for two issues unless otherwise indicated. Examinations and dissertation proposals run for only one issue.
Unit Facilities

UNACCEPTABLE

Campus and school facilities are not functional or well maintained to support candidate progress toward meeting standards. They do not support preparation of candidates to use current technologies.

ACCEPTABLE

The unit has adequate campus and school facilities to support candidates in meeting standards. The facilities support faculty and candidate’s use of information technology in instruction.

TARGET

The unit has outstanding facilities on campus and with partner schools to support candidates in meeting standards. Facilities support the most recent developments in technology that allow faculty to model the use of technology and candidates to practice its use for instructional purposes.

Unit Resources Including Technology

UNACCEPTABLE

Allocations of resources across programs are uneven in ways that impede candidates’ ability to meet standards. Few or no resources are available for developing and implementing the unit’s assessment plan. Information technology resources are so limited that candidates are unable to experience use of information technology. Faculty and candidates do not have access to sufficient and current library and curricular resources or electronic information.

ACCEPTABLE

The unit allocates resources across programs to prepare candidates to meet standards for their fields. It provides adequate resources to develop and implement the unit’s assessment plan. The unit has adequate information technology resources to support faculty and candidates. Faculty and candidates have access both to sufficient and current library and curricular resources and electronic information.

TARGET

The unit aggressively and successfully secures resources to support high-quality and exemplary programs and projects to ensure that candidates meet standards. The development and implementation of the unit’s assessment system is well funded. The unit serves as an information technology resource in education beyond the education programs—to the institution, community, and other institutions. Faculty and candidates have access to exemplary library, curricular, and electronic information resources that not only serve the unit, but also a broader constituency.

The unit has outstanding facilities on campus and with partner schools to support candidates in meeting standards. Facilities support the most recent developments in technology that allow faculty to model the use of technology and candidates to practice its use for instructional purposes.

TYPES OF GRADUATE ASSISTANTSHIPS

TEACHING ASSISTANTSHIP

A Teaching Assistant (TA) has one or more of the following responsibilities in courses for which he or she does not have primary responsibility: (1) coordinate, lead, or assist in the instructional process in preparation and direct interaction with students in lab, discussion, quiz, or problem sessions; (2) meet with students and teach during office hours; (3) grade papers; (4) grade and proctor exams; (5) supervise undergraduate interns; (6) counsel students; (7) administer colloquium programs. A TA may have additional, related duties as assigned.

In addition to positions in academic departments and the Division of Continuing Education, Teaching Assistants (and Teaching Associates) may be hired for instructional programming approved for and funded by non-academic departments. An example is the 3-credit Peer Sex Education course, designed and offered by the University Health Services and credited to the Public Health Department. Under no circumstance may a Teaching Assistant’s responsibilities include duties that are unrelated to instructional effort, e.g., clerical, administrative, or even research type activities. A non-academic department must first have met institutional review requirements for an instructional program before it can appoint Teaching Assistants.

TEACHING ASSOCIATESHIP

A Teaching Associate is responsible for the teaching and grading of a course. Teaching Associate positions, like the TA, can be paid from any funding source.

RESEARCH ASSISTANTSHIP

Research Assistants assist in conducting research of a scholarly nature, normally under faculty supervision. The work of a Research Assistant can include, but is not limited to, the gathering and analyses of data, the development of theoretical analyses and models, the production or publication of scholarly journals and research reports which is primarily for his or her own research, and is secondarily for the benefit of the University, faculty or academic staff supervisor, or granting agency.

PROJECT ASSISTANTSHIP

The Project Assistantship is a form of Research Assistantship where the graduate student performs work primarily for the benefit of the University, faculty or academic staff supervisor, and secondarily for the graduate student’s own research. The Project Assistant must, however, do work related to academic research. This position cannot be used as an alternative to an Internship when a student’s academic work is not enriched by the job duties.

ENGLISH FOR SPECIFIC PURPOSES (ESP) INSTITUTE

The Indiana Center for Intercultural Communication (ICIC) in the I.U. School of Liberal Arts at Indiana University-Purdue University (IUPUI) is pleased to offer the Eighth Annual English for Specific Purposes (ESP) Institute on July 9-20, 2007. Coordinated by Dr. Ulla Connor, courses taught by Dr. Ulla Connor and Dr. William Rozycki.

What is the ESP Institute?
An intensive, two-week institute to introduce ESL practitioners and English language educators to English for Specific Purposes.

Two courses, offered through IUPUI meet for two weeks:

Linguistics T600: Issues in ESP (3 credit hours), M-F
This course will provide learners with the historical and theoretical background of ESP, especially ESP in the U.S. Theories and models for teaching ESP will be evaluated.

English G541: Materials Development for TESOL (4 credit hours), M-F

This course looks at needs analysis and the creating/adapting of ESL teaching materials for use in specific settings.

Workshops by visiting ESP researchers/practitioners, guest speakers from Indiana companies addressing workplace issues, presentations by ESL professionals.

For whom is the ESP Institute designed?
- Individuals currently involved in English for academic or professional purposes
- Teachers of English as a second language (ESL) or as a foreign language who wish to acquire skills for teaching ESP in the workplace

What are the benefits of completing the ESP Institute?
- Acquisition of the skills and knowledge base to set up a basic ESP program (needs analysis, syllabus and course design, materials development, program implementation, evaluation)
- Accessibility to ICIC staff and resources on future language training issues
- Opportunity to continue studies toward a 21-credit hour certificate in TESL with emphasis on ESP
- Insight into an innovative teaching approach

How do I register?
IUPUI/IU students can register via the internet at: https://onestart.iu.edu/my-prd/Portal.do or (317) 274-1501
Non-IUPUI/IU students should contact the Graduate Non-Degree Program at: http://www.iupui.edu/~resgrad or (317) 274-1577
Those wishing to take this for no university credit should contact ICIC directly ($1,000 for both courses, $600 for either T600 or G541 individually)

For more information, please contact: ICIC at (317) 274-2555, icic@iupui.edu, www.iupui.edu/~icic.

Information for international participants: For non-credit registration we believe that a tourist visa accommodates this activity. For credit options, internationals would need J-1 visas.

2008 CONTEMPLATIVE PRACTICE FELLOWSHIP
COMPETITION

Now Accepting Applications
Deadline: November 15, 2007

Regular full-time faculty members at colleges and universities in the United States and Canada are eligible to apply for the 2008 Contemplative Practice Fellowships. These fellowships are intended to support scholars for the development of courses that employ contemplative practices to address issues of social conflict and injustice, the amelioration of suffering, and the promotion of peace. Individual scholars, partnerships, or groups of scholars may apply. Approximately ten fellowships will be awarded.

We invite proposals from the full range of disciplinary and inter-disciplinary perspectives in the arts, humanities, social sciences, and sciences. Methodologies that include practical and experiential approaches to the subject matter are especially welcome.

If you have questions, please contact Sunanda Markus, Academic Program Coordinator, at: fellowships@contemplativemind.org.

CALL FOR SUBMISSIONS

INTERNATIONAL SEMINAR ON ETHNOGRAPHY AND LANGUAGE LEARNING

The International Seminar on Ethnography and Language Learning will be held on December 10 to 12, 2007, sponsored by La Universidad Autonoma Benito Juarez de Oaxaca. The theme of this year’s seminar will be: The ethnographic turn in the study of learning additional languages.

The objectives of the seminar will be: to bring together scholars in applied linguistics in language learning and related disciplines to explore new theoretical and methodological perspectives on ethnographic research; to publish a volume of selected articles on the topic; to establish an agenda for national and international ethnographic networks on learning additional languages; to engage teachers and student-teachers in these debates.

We solicit papers addressing one or more of the following questions:
What are the interplays between language, culture, agency and structure in the process of adding language (s) to existing language repertories?

What are the roles of identity construction in additional language learning? (i.e. in what ways do the identity locations of gender, sexuality, social class and ethnicity affect the dynamics of additional language learning?)

What are the cultural and social meanings attached or assigned to language performances by the actors involved (students, teachers, community, etc.)?

What kind of language ideologies frame the social context of additional language learning?

What are the overall political and economic factors that frame the context for additional language learning in Mexico?

Can the everyday lives of language learners be represented by ethnographic narratives?

Can the complexes of postcolonial and poststructural argumentation be represented by the use of ethnographic narratives?

Can we define the role of power and authority in additional language learning through ethnographic analysis?

Can we ethnographically define which Standard of English is being used, learnt and taught in Mexico?

What is the political, social and cultural import of English in Mexico?

What are the ethnographic comparisons of English learnt in the Mexican classroom and the English that is brought back by returning migrants?

Abstracts (700 words long and including description of the objective, setting and methodology of the study) should be sent to:
Dra. Maria de los Angeles Clemente, e-mail: angeles-clemente@hotmail.com

The participants whose abstracts are accepted will submit their papers by October 15th and they will be notified of their acceptance by November 1st. All the participants will receive an electronic copy of the 12 papers accepted, which should be read in order be able to give feedback to the authors during the seminar. The participants will have 60 minute sessions (15 minutes to talk about their paper and 45 to discuss it) All the participants would work on the final versions of their papers in order for them to be published around July 2008 by the UABJO and other universities willing to participate.

Other important dates:
Results on abstracts notified by: August 5th
Maximum abstracts accepted: 20 abstracts
Papers submission deadlines: October 15th
Results on papers notified by: November 1st
Maximum papers accepted: 12 papers
Registration fee: 120.00 USA dollars (official invoices issued by UABJO)
Deadline for articles to be published: March 31st 2008

Equity & Excellence in Education

Special Issue: Bilingualism & Biliteracy: Issues of Equity, Access, & Social Justice for English Language Learners

Guest Editors: Karen Cadiero-Kaplan and James L. Rodriguez, Department of Policy Studies in Language & Cross-Cultural Education, San Diego State University

Excellence in Education is currently soliciting manuscripts for a special theme issue on Bilingualism & Biliteracy. We welcome scholarly research that focuses on the array of equity, access, and social justice issues embedded in theory, research, and practice on bilingualism, biliteracy and the education of English Learners in pre-K through 12 classrooms as well as well-documented descriptive articles that examine topics such as the following: sociopolitical factors surrounding bilingualism, biliteracy, and English language learning; educational experiences of children & adolescents in bilingual and English learning classrooms; family and/or community involvement of students in dual language, bilingual and English learning classrooms; the preparation of teachers working with bilingual children/English Learners; research that highlights successful dual language, bilingual, or English learner program models.

In addition, we would like to feature new research and theoretical perspectives that address programs and curricula that: promote bilingualism, biculturalism and biliteracy; promote social justice for bilingual/multilingual children and adolescents; promote academic achievement for all students with a focus on bilingual/multilingual children and adolescents.

Submission Guidelines: Complete manuscripts are due October 1, 2007. Submit three “masked” paper (hard) copies plus a disk with separate cover title page including author contact information. Suggested article length: 25 double-spaced pages. Please indicate in your cover letter that the submission is for the special issue on Bilingualism & Biliteracy.

Mail to: Equity & Excellence in Education, Hills South 370, School of Education, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01003.

For author guidelines, please visit the journal website (http://www.eee-journal.com). All submissions are peer reviewed. Contact Karen Cadiero-Kaplan, with any questions related to this special issue: kcadiero@mail.sdsu.edu
