FORMATION OF DISSERTATION COMMITTEES

HABI BULLAH WAJDI       Proposed Dissertation Title: "Community participation for the improvement of schools in Afghanistan: social capital in action. Statement of the Problem: In Afghanistan, effective and active community participation can improve performance of rural schools. But effective and successful community participation depends on in-depth understanding of cultural and social characteristics of rural communities, and how these characteristics are effectively mobilized for the improvement of schools. This study will explore important parameters of social capital in promotion of community participation for the improvement of rural schools in Afghanistan. Chairperson: Dr. David R. Evans.

HADLEY H. MOORE       Proposed Dissertation Title: "Exploring Differences between Student and Teacher Reports of Relational Aggression." Statement of the Problem: There are a wide range of behaviors consistent with bullying, including both relational and physical expressions. Relational aggression refers to behaviors that harm others through damage to relationships, feelings of acceptance, and group inclusion. More research is needed on how relational aggression is understood by students, teachers and administrators in the context of a school. Chairperson: Dr. John Hintze.

2010 Teaching Assistant Orientation
UMass-Amherst
Friday, September 3, 2010

The Provost’s Office and the Graduate School offer the annual campus-wide Teaching Assistant Orientation (TAO) on Friday, September 3, 2010. The TAO, which is coordinated by the Center for Teaching, provides participants with an opportunity to meet senior TAs, gain important basic teaching skills, and to begin to feel a sense of membership in the larger University of Massachusetts community of scholars.

The TAO grew out of a commitment to equip TAs for their role as teacher. For many new TAs this Orientation is their first professional preparation opportunity. The campus-wide TA Orientation may also meet the departmental requirement for a TA development as stipulated in the contract negotiated on behalf of TAs by the Graduate Employee Organization (GEO). While the GEO contract mandates training for all first-time TAs, returning TAs are also always welcome to attend the TAO. Because of the overwhelmingly positive response to past programs, we heartily encourage that TAs in your department be invited to participate in the 2010 TA Orientation.

The program includes a general overview of teaching at the University of Massachusetts, including workshops on fundamental teaching skills from distinguished faculty members.

School of Education faculty, students, staff & alumni share what they are doing.

Sandra Madden, assistant professor in the School of Education’s Department of Teacher Education and Curriculum Studies, will be in Ljubljana, Slovenia in July to present a lecture on “Overcoming obstacles to support secondary teachers’ statistical content knowledge for teaching.”

The talk, to be presented at the International Conference on Teaching Statistics, builds on Dr. Madden’s work in statistics education with practicing teachers and the use of dynamic technology to support learning.

Organized by the International Association for Statistical Education, the conference is held every four years as a means to provide statistics educators and professionals around the world the opportunity to present recent innovation and research in the field of statistics education, and to expand their range of collaborators.

This conference will draw together faculty members, researchers and education professionals and provides them with the opportunity to interact with colleagues from the same field as well as other, related fields. It is a presenter’s conference, and we strongly encourage people to attend the various sessions throughout the three day conference. The conference registration fee includes a plated lunch each day of the conference, as well as an opening night reception, providing attendees an opportunity to meet and get to know each other. Student registration rates are $300, and faculty registration rates are $375.

Kerry Lassiter will deliver a keynote address at the meeting, "Research Guiding Literacy Practices in Louisiana." Dr. Lassiter is the Executive Director for PreK-12 Literacy at the Louisiana Department of Education. She has received numerous awards, including selection as Louisiana Principal of the year, the Fouquier Education Leadership Award, and Fulbright Scholar. Speakers at previous education conferences included: Peter Levine, CIRCLE; Carolyn Pereira, Constitutional Rights Foundation; Trey Grayson, Kentucky Secretary of State.

Funding Opportunity: Education Research

Deadline: Ongoing for pre-proposals

The Spencer Foundation Major Grants Program provides grants greater than $40,000 for research that contributes new knowledge to the improvement of education, broadly conceived, in the U.S. and abroad. A variety of disciplinary and interdisciplinary approaches are favored; though emphasis is given to the behavioral sciences. Priority areas of inquiry are: Relation between Education and Social Opportunity; Organizational Learning in Schools, School Systems, and Higher Education Institutions; Teaching, Learning, and Instructional Resources; and Purposes and Values of Education. Spencer also gives grants for three strategic initiatives: Civic Learning and Civic Action; Data Use and Educational Improvement; and Philosophy in Educational Policy and Practice. Research may range from medium-sized studies that can be completed in a year by an individual researcher to more extensive collaborative studies that last several years. Field-initiated proposals outside these areas will also be considered. For more information:
