• Juliana Spahr
SEPTEMBER 15

"Her work is relevant both historically as well as contemporarily, representing popular political and social transgressive movements of our day while achieving literary merit of the highest order."

—The Rumpus

• Selah Saterstrom
SEPTEMBER 22

"Stories that are good must be told and this one tells its way right into your subconscious and stays there until you fall asleep, haunting you with words and images."

—BooksLut

• Sabina Murray
NOVEMBER 3

"This novel is made out of history but is every bit a modern marvel."

—Alexander Chee

• Peter Gizzi
DECEMBER 1

"Peter Gizzi’s disturbing lyricism is like no other."

—Adrienne Rich

The Visiting Writers Series is sponsored by the Juniper Initiative, and made possible in part by support from the University of Massachusetts Arts Council and the English Department.
