Definitions and Notes

Applications: Data are reported according to the program to which the student applied (at the undergraduate level, the preferred major). Includes only those students who were accepted in the preferred major either as a major or a pre-major. For example, students offered alternate acceptances, typically as undeclared majors, are not included in the acceptances and enrollments.

Enrollments: Includes only those students who were enrolled in the preferred major either as a major or a pre-major.

Acceptance Rate: The percent of applicants who were accepted (in the preferred major at the undergraduate level).

Yield: The percent of accepted students who enrolled in the preferred major.

Note 1: All data reflect the organizational structure as of Fall 2011.

Note 2: Programs administered by Continuing & Professional Education are included.

Note 3: Transfers include post-graduate students.

Note 4: Certificates of Advanced Graduate Study (C.A.G.S.) students have been included with Master's degrees.

Definitions and Notes

Applications: Data are reported according to the program to which the student applied (at the undergraduate level, the preferred major). Includes only those students who were accepted in the preferred major either as a major or a pre-major. For example, students offered alternate acceptances, typically as undeclared majors, are not included in the acceptances and enrollments.

Enrollments: Includes only those students who were enrolled in the preferred major either as a major or a pre-major.

Acceptance Rate: The percent of applicants who were accepted (in the preferred major at the undergraduate level).

Yield: The percent of accepted students who enrolled in the preferred major.

Note 1: All data reflect the organizational structure as of Fall 2011.

Note 2: Programs administered by Continuing & Professional Education are included.

Note 3: Transfers include post-graduate students.

Note 4: Effective Fall 2009, the College of Natural Sciences (CNS) was established, bringing together most of the life sciences. CNS was a merger of most of the departments in the College of Natural Resources and the Environment (NRE) and Natural Sciences and Mathematics (NSM), which were eliminated, and the Psychology Department from the College of SBS.

Note 5: Includes some Master's students who applied to programs administered through Continuing and Professional Education.

Note 6: Effective Fall 2011, the Master's in Sustainability Science is offered as a interdisciplinary major.

Definitions and Notes

Applications: Data are reported according to the program to which the student applied (at the undergraduate level, the preferred major). Includes only those students who were accepted in the preferred major either as a major or a pre-major. For example, students offered alternate acceptances, typically as undeclared majors, are not included in the acceptances and enrollments.

Enrollments: Includes only those students who were enrolled in the preferred major either as a major or a pre-major.

Acceptance Rate: The percent of applicants who were accepted (in the preferred major at the undergraduate level).

Yield: The percent of accepted students who enrolled in the preferred major.

Note 1: All data reflect the organizational structure as of Fall 2011.

Note 2: Programs administered by Continuing & Professional Education are included.

Note 3: Transfers include post-graduate students.

Note 4: Effective Fall 2008, includes Environmental Science students.

Note 5: The name of the department was changed to Environmental Conservation from Natural Resources Conservation in 2010.

Note 6: In 2010, the name of the B.S in Natural Resource Studies was renamed Natural Resources Conservation and the program was reorganized with six new concentrations. The B.S. program in Forestry and Wildlife and the B.S in Fisheries Conservation will be phased out. The B.S. in Building Materials and Wood Technology was renamed Building and Construction Technology.

Note 7: In 2010, the graduate program was reorganized with five new concentrations. The name of the Master's and Doctoral programs in Wildlife and Fisheries Conservation was changed to Environmental Conservation. The Master's in Forest Resources major will be phased out.

Definitions and Notes

Applications: Data are reported according to the program to which the student applied (at the undergraduate level, the preferred major). Includes only those students who were accepted in the preferred major either as a major or a pre-major. For example, students offered alternate acceptances, typically as undeclared majors, are not included in the acceptances and enrollments.

Enrollments: Includes only those students who were enrolled in the preferred major either as a major or a pre-major.

Acceptance Rate: The percent of applicants who were accepted (in the preferred major at the undergraduate level).

Yield: The percent of accepted students who enrolled in the preferred major.

Note 1: All data reflect the organizational structure as of Fall 2011.

Note 2: Programs administered by Continuing & Professional Education are included.

Note 3: Transfers include post-graduate students.

Note 4: Plant Biology became a separate interdisciplinary program in Fall 2000. Formerly, the program was in the Biology Department.

Definitions and Notes

Applications: Data are reported according to the program to which the student applied (at the undergraduate level, the preferred major). Includes only those students who were accepted in the preferred major either as a major or a pre-major. For example, students offered alternate acceptances, typically as undeclared majors, are not included in the acceptances and enrollments.

Enrollments: Includes only those students who were enrolled in the preferred major either as a major or a pre-major.

Acceptance Rate: The percent of applicants who were accepted (in the preferred major at the undergraduate level).

Yield: The percent of accepted students who enrolled in the preferred major.

Note 1: All data reflect the organizational structure as of Fall 2011.

Note 2: Programs administered by Continuing & Professional Education are included.

Note 3: Transfers include post-graduate students.

Acceptance Rate: The percent of applicants who were accepted (in the preferred major at the undergraduate level).

Yield: The percent of accepted students who enrolled in the preferred major.

Note 1: All data reflect the organizational structure as of Fall 2011.

Note 2: Programs administered by Continuing & Professional Education are included.

Note 3: Transfers include post-graduate students.

Note 4: All first year and many Transfer students admitted into Engineering enroll in a Pre-Engineering major.

Note 5: Admission to the major is selective and some applicants are accepted into an alternate major.

Applications: Data are reported according to the program to which the student applied (at the undergraduate level, the preferred major). Includes only those students who were accepted in the preferred major either as a major or a pre-major. For example, students offered alternate acceptances, typically as undeclared majors, are not included in the acceptances and enrollments.

Enrollments: Includes only those students who were enrolled in the preferred major either as a major or a pre-major.

Note 1: All data reflect the organizational structure as of Fall 2011.

Note 2: Programs administered by Continuing & Professional Education are included.

Note 3: Transfers include post-graduate students.

Note 4: Transfer students applying to the College of Engineering are assigned to the "Engineering" major regardless of major at the department level. Once accepted, the "applied" major is changed to the specific major in which the student was accepted. This admissions practice is reflected in acceptance rates near 100%.

Note 5: Includes graduate students who applied to the Engineering Management program administered through Continuing and Professional Education. Admission to this program was suspended in Fall 2006.

Definitions and Notes

Applications: Data are reported according to the program to which the student applied (at the undergraduate level, the preferred major). Includes only those students who were accepted in the preferred major either as a major or a pre-major. For example, students offered alternate acceptances, typically as undeclared majors, are not included in the acceptances and enrollments.

Enrollments: Includes only those students who were enrolled in the preferred major either as a major or a pre-major.

Acceptance Rate: The percent of applicants who were accepted (in the preferred major at the undergraduate level).

Yield: The percent of accepted students who enrolled in the preferred major.

Note 1: All data reflect the organizational structure as of Fall 2011.

Note 2: Programs administered by Continuing & Professional Education are included.

Note 3: Transfers include post-graduate students.

Note 4: Admission to the major is selective and some applicants are accepted into an alternate major.

Definitions and Notes

Applications: Data are reported according to the program to which the student applied (at the undergraduate level, the preferred major). Includes only those students who were accepted in the preferred major either as a major or a pre-major. For example, students offered alternate acceptances, typically as undeclared majors, are not included in the acceptances and enrollments.

Enrollments: Includes only those students who were enrolled in the preferred major either as a major or a pre-major.

Acceptance Rate: The percent of applicants who were accepted (in the preferred major at the undergraduate level).

Yield: The percent of accepted students who enrolled in the preferred major.

Note 1: All data reflect the organizational structure as of Fall 2011.

Note 2: Programs administered by Continuing & Professional Education are included.

Note 3: Transfers include post-graduate students.

Note 4: Includes University - Undeclared, Bachelor's Degree with Individual Concentration (BDIC), Bachelor of General Studies (BGS) and University Without Walls (UWW).
