A Congressional Briefing Presented by the American Psychological Association

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF PREJUDICE AND DISCRIMINATION: A Scientific Perspective on Immigration

American citizens’ reactions to recent arrivals to the United States can sometimes be characterized by prejudice and fear, leading to stigma and discrimination.

Join a panel of expert psychologists to discuss:

- The psychological factors that lead to biases
- The psychological, physical, and economic effects on individuals and communities
- The empirically-based policy solutions that address these biases

March 17, 2016  12:00-1:30pm
385 Russell Senate Office Building
Lunch Provided

Speakers Include:

John F. Dovidio, PhD, Professor of Psychology, Yale University
Linda Tropp, PhD, Professor of Psychology, University of Massachusetts Amherst
Heather Stewart, Counsel & Director of Immigration Policy, NAFSA
Gabrielle Jackson, Immigration Activist

RSVP to Erin Carney at ecarney@apa.org by March 11th