1. Chief of campus police Barbara O'Connor presented a number of issues regarding various aspects of campus violence. Campus policies and administrative restraints were discussed in some detail. From this discussion, it became evident that if the committee is to make any specific recommendations in terms of attempting to reduce campus violence, a much clearer picture of how the University Administration deals with such matters, and the legal and quasi-legal restraints that are imposed on the administration need to be clarified. With this concept in mind, the Chairman will invite undergraduate Dean of students Jo-Anne Vanin to address the Committee for the purpose of engaging her in a detailed discussion regarding the views and limitations of the administration and various legal constraints imposed on her office in dealing with various aspects of campus violence.
