Spring 2012 Registration and Advising Notes

STPEC Spring 2012
Registration Advising begins
WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 9th

ALL STPEC students will need to come to the STPEC office for advising before they will be able to register on SPIRE. Don't wait until it's your day to start registering - come in early!!!

Important Advising Details:
★ Once you have met with a STPEC advisor your STPEC advising hold will be lifted and you will be able to use the SPIRE system for Spring course registration. You MUST meet with a STPEC advisor in order to have course registration access.
★ STPEC students who are Seniors must see either Danielle Nelson or Katherine Mallory for advising. If your graduation year is 2012 (going by the Registrar’s records) you will need to see Katherine or Danielle for an advising session before your advising hold will be lifted. Because they will be so much in demand during pre-registration, Katherine and Danielle will be scheduling appointment times for seniors for advising. Appointment sheets for senior advising will be posted on the door of the STPEC Program Office.
★ No appointment is necessary for general advising for non-seniors - although you may want to call before coming over to make sure that someone will be in the office to help you when you arrive. If you have unusual circumstances and you feel that you need special help, you may want to make a point of seeing Katherine Mallory, STPEC’s Chief Academic Advisor.
★ We will try our best to publish the STPEC Recommended Course List by November 14th. The list will also be posted to www.umass.edu/stpec. If you have any suggestions for courses you would like to see - or not see - put on our list, please let us know now!

Welcome to New Students
We are pleased to welcome the following new students to the STPEC Program as of September 2011:
Many thanks to all the STPEC students and staff who helped with these meetings!

Please come into the STPEC office to sign up for a meeting time (the sign up sheet is posted next to the front desk) and obtain a STPEC Application Form. If you cannot make any of these times please speak to either the Program Coordinator or the Program Director so that they may arrange an alternate time for you. The new student meeting is a requirement for all new STPEC students.

As always, we’re looking for current STPEC student volunteers to help with the new student meetings - it’s fun and easy and a good way to meet new STPEC students! Please see Deborah in the STPEC Office if you’d like to help - or just show up.

This is a compilation narrative written by Jonathan Allen with assistance from Eric Cameron. Current STPEC students Jonathan Allen, Eric Cameron, Katelyn Golsby, Jason Allen and Joseph Brennan went to OWS.

I woke up to sirens. Ohh Shit, they are expelling us from the PARK, I thought, SIRENS! I was immediately awake, adrenaline and excitement of the impending fight overwhelming any remaining fatigue. I opened my eyes and surveyed Zuccotti park in the rapidly growing light. A couple stirred. A homeless man snored. Next to me, my friend slumbered. No. False alarm. All was quiet on Sunday, day 16 (October 9th) of Occupy Wall Street. Sirens were part of a fact of life in New York City, and besides, I was sleeping on the street.

I had arrived late on the previous Friday, day 14 of Occupy with a friend, a vanguard of sorts for a five-member STPEC contingent planning on attending the event. I can only describe the ensuing night as fraternal. As new people we faced a benevolent front of kindness and assistance from complete strangers; people helped us find space, food, and medical assistance, which was immensely fortunate as we were hurting, hungry, thirsty and short on food and whiskey.

The second wave arrived the next day- three of our friends and fellow STPEC’rs, bringing badly needed provisions: crackers, cheese, canned sardines, sandwiches, liquor, blankets and fresh adrenaline- the life-blood of the poorly rested occupiers. They came with phone numbers of Girlfriends willing to post bail money written on their arms and monetary donations from several complete strangers, who they had interacted with on their complicated train and car trip to New York.

The morning before their arrival was a lively one of exploration and discovery: we read books at the peoples library (hosted on-site!), drum circled, learned how to get out of handcuffs, ate, volunteered with the cleaning cadres, but most importantly, we talked. and talked to everyone: fellow protesters, tourists, locals, even the cops. People of all creeds, sexual social and political persuasions. Fascinating.

Our second night (night 15) was decidedly less dreamy then our first. The neighbors were loud, and the cops more obnoxious than usual. Worse, one of the newly arrived friends came down with a severe case of food poisoning. After five hours of running around South Manhattan looking for open bathrooms at 0400 hours, the new arrivees decided to evacuate him back to Amherst; and so began their combined car, bus and train ride back home, twelve hours after their much-hailed arrival. We departed a couple of hours later, boarding the bus to return to Amherst.

In hindsight, I have a lot of feelings about what we participated in, most of them positive. One thing is clear - this is no AstroTurf movement. It is a legitimate, non-hierarchical people’s movement that as a result has no set demands besides the need for significant, legitimate political and economic change in a more democratic, egalitarian direction. It’s also showing no signs of slowing: in fact, the Occupy movement is gaining momentum around the world. I urge you, if you haven’t already, to attend a local Occupy movement, and, if you can’t, at least make a donation.

Labor Studies and Union Semester at the Murphy Institute at CUNY

The M.A. in Labor Studies is an exciting new degree program at CUNY that attracts trade unionists, activists interested in doing labor movement and community organizing, non-profit, or social justice work, as well as professionals and graduate students with an interest in labor. Union Semester is a program for both undergraduates and graduate students who intern with a labor organization in New York City while taking college or Masters' level courses in Labor Studies. They receive a stipend, in-state tuition, and a partial scholarship to help cover their expenses. Many of these students go on to enroll in the M.A. in Labor Studies.

Interested students should contact Laurie Kellogg (a STPEC alumna) at laurie.kellogg@mail.cuny.edu

For more details on both programs visit the Murphy Institute website at: http://www.workered.org/

ELIE WIESEL PRIZE IN ETHICS

The Elie Wiesel Prize in Ethics Essay Contest is an annual competition designed to challenge college students to analyze the urgent ethical issues confronting them in today's complex world. Registered undergraduate full-time juniors or seniors are eligible. First prize is $5,000. Online submissions only. Contest Deadline is December 5, 2011. For more information go to www.eliewieselfoundation.org.

This year's suggested topic:

Planning to do an Internship during Spring or Summer 2012?

Now is the Time to talk to Katherine!

Are you planning to do your STPEC internship requirement during the spring semester? If so, you should discuss your plans with Katherine Mallory, STPEC Internship Advisor, before the end of this semester.

You must have an internship placement set up and approved by Katherine before you can sign up for the course. Setting up an internship can take some time - if you wait until classes begin to make these arrangements, you may find that you are unable to pull it together in time to add the course.

Your grade for the course will be based on your written analysis of your experience. Writing assignments are due at intervals throughout the semester in which you do your internship. For this reason, it may not be possible to register for the course after the completion of add/drop.

The course number for the required internship is STPEC 498Y, section 1. This course is not accessible online (i.e. you cannot add it through the SPIRE system). To register, you must do the following:

- Meet with Katherine to discuss your ideas for a placement and the course requirements.
- Find a placement. Katherine is available to assist you if needed, but you must do the footwork. The responsibility for finding a placement lies with you.
- Get Katherine’s approval for your placement. Not all internship sites get approved - this is why it’s important to meet with Katherine before you finalize your placement.
- Complete the STPEC Internship Contract & Registration Form (available from the STPEC office). Make sure you fill in and attach all the requested information - otherwise we will not be able to add you to the course.

The STPEC Internship Contract is all you need to add the course, unless your total class load is more than 18 credits (including the internship), in which case you must get a credit overload approved by the Dean’s office before we can add you to the course.

Occasionally we accept prior internships or internships completed through other departments for the required internship. In order for such a course to count, it must be graded, worth three or more credits, and involve at least 100 hours of work. In addition, you must have written, or be willing to write, an analytical paper of at least 12 pages based on your experience, which you must submit to Katherine for approval.

How to contact Katherine:
- Drop by the STPEC office during Katherine’s office hours
- Leave a message in Katherine’s mailbox in the STPEC office
- Email stpecinternship@sbs.umass.edu
- Call 545-0043 (leave a message if Katherine’s not in)

Want to get more out of your internship?
Want ongoing guidance, feedback and support on the development of your internship paper?
STPEC will once again be offering....

STPEC 494A: Praxis

This is a two credit graded optional course offered to help students further explore the relationship between theory and practice. This class will offer practical guidance on writing the Internship papers. To register please speak with Katherine Mallory.

Radical Alternative Spring Break Class

Grassroots Community Organizing (GCO) is a class that meets in the spring to study structural inequality (race, class, gender, ability, sexuality, etc.) and community organizing as a tool to challenge those systems that lead to marginalization. The class is facilitated by former students who have trained and prepared for a semester--there’s no professor in the classroom. GCO embraces an alternative approach to education, which stresses building community in the classroom--a major part of the class are the deep personal relationships that students form with one another. This also takes the form of a more democratic, dialogic, student-centered approach to teaching, rejecting the "banking" model in which information is delivered to students, who are then expected to regurgitate it for exams.

The class has two sections, each of which spends a week over spring break working hands-on with a community organization. One class will work with Alliance to Develop Power in Springfield, MA (http://www.a-dp.org/) and another will work in Richmond, VA with Virginia Organizing (http://www.virginia-organizing.org), both amazing grassroots organizations waging a variety of campaigns.

GCO is a 5 credit honors course in Anthropology, but is open to all students, regardless of major or honors/non-honors status. The course is by application only, and applications are due by Friday, November 18th.

For the application, and more information, please visit: http://www.umass.edu/uact. If you have questions that are not answered above, or would like to talk about the program in more depth, contact STPEC student Adam Leader-Smith at aleaders@student.umass.edu
