This is the Undergraduate Catalog of the University of Massachusetts Amherst. All students are responsible for observing the rules and regulations published herein, as well as those in other official publications regarding policies and requirements which may be issued from time to time. Students are also expected to have read other general information documents. The University reserves, for itself and its departments, the right to change its announcements or regulations whenever such action is deemed appropriate or necessary.

The information in this publication is provided solely as a convenience; no contractual liability is assumed. Because courses listed and their descriptions were secured from academic departments prior to a deadline of December 1, 2000, this publication should not be assumed to be currently complete or fully accurate. A final and more complete course listing is contained in the official Schedule of Courses published by the University for preregistration use each semester, and from which selection of specific courses should be made. The Schedule of Courses provides course identification by section, and lists times and places of meeting; this catalog does not attempt to serve these functions. Unless otherwise indicated, "the University" in this catalog refers to the Amherst campus of the University of Massachusetts.

This catalog was prepared by the University Editor with the authorization and assistance of the Office of the Provost, for the use of potential applicants, undergraduate students, and University faculty and departments. A Graduate Bulletin describing graduate programs and courses is published separately.
