UMACC is the workplace-giving program at UMass Amherst. Faculty and staff can donate to ANY charitable organization through payroll deduction, cash/check, or credit card. NONE of your donation stays at UMass.

Why Give?
Because giving feels good.
A 2008 Harvard Business School study showed that giving money to someone else made people feel better than spending it on themselves.

Why give through UMAACC?
A small amount can go a long way.
If you give through payroll deduction you can have a relatively small amount deducted from your pay check each pay period, which adds up to a sizeable donation. $10 per pay period adds up to a $260 donation.

It saves you work. You can choose multiple charitable organizations to give to, without having to write multiple checks or visit multiple websites. Also, come tax time you will only have one receipt to account for.

It’s efficient for the charitable organizations. Charitable organizations love workplace-giving programs like UMAACC, because it allows them to receive donations from multiple individuals in one check, which cuts down on their processing time.
