For decades, racially minoritized communities have fought for the ability to raise children and live in safe and sustainable communities. At the same time, socialist feminists and women of color feminists have struggled for “reproductive freedom” and “reproductive justice”—the joining of issues of birth control and abortion to questions of sterilization abuse and economic justice. This course will explore the broadest understanding of reproductive justice, including all the things necessary for households to raise children—schools, nutrition, housing, health care, safety. It will explore activism that demanded such things, from the “survival programs” of Black Panther Party and abortion “under community control” of the Puerto Rican Young Lords Party in the 1970s to SisterSong and Asian Communities for Reproductive Justice in the 1990s to #BLM and Familia: Trans Queer Liberation Movement in the present. We will explore issues that include freedom from sterilization, high quality affordable day care, IVF, immigrant justice, social reproduction and wages for housework, welfare and neoliberalism, foreclosure and affordable housing.

Because the politics of reproduction are broad issues, constantly changing, and in the news, students will be asked to add to this syllabus based on their own research (individually or as part of a group) by doing a presentation in the last weeks of class. One of our goals is to learn from each other and the evolving conversation in the news.

Grading and structure of assignments

Break-down of final grade, by percent:
20-class discussion
15-1" paper (2 pp.), due 9/14/16
20-2"nd paper (5 pp.), due 10/5/16
20-3"rd paper (5 pp.), due 11/16/16
25-final project, presentation, and 10-15pp research paper, due 12/19/16

All papers will be due before the class meeting and should be submitted to the online drop box in Moodle. If you need an extension for some reason, please make arrangements before the due date. I am happy to accept re-writes on the short papers (2 and 5 pp) as long as they are turned in before the last day of classes and you visit the writing tutor, Elise Swinford.
Assignments are detailed in the syllabus, below. Make sure your read the whole syllabus ahead of time.

Required texts
E-reserves (and all URLs or PDFs listed) will be available in Moodle.

Day-to-day business of the course
Reproductive politics has not always engendered good conversation or thoughtful engagement—in fact, the usual image of the conversation includes screaming, threatening, and barely suppressed (or not suppressed) violence. That is not what we are about here. Universities provide us the privilege and pleasure of reading together and learning from each other. Our job in this class is to create an intellectual community, one in which all are enriched by each others’ readings. We will be discussing weighty, critical issues, which is why we need each other’s help to think well as to try to understand how the reading can (or fails to) speak to our situation in the world. This imposes on each of us the responsibility of coming to class with the reading done, speaking up about our insights and questions, and listening respectfully to each other (which is not to say always agreeing). It’s worth noting that these are not clear left/right or Democrat/Republican issues—the state with the best-subsidized daycare is Oklahoma, where it is a Republican program.

So. You are expected to come to class with the reading done. For this class to work well, everyone needs to talk and think out loud. In order to facilitate this, we need to have the highest level of respect for each other. Your class participation grade will rest on how successfully you exhibit engagement with the material and with your classmates. This course is not a competition over who has "good" or "bad" politics (whatever we may consider those to be), it is an honest exploration of various kinds of political and intellectual positions, and the ways these have been historically constituted. Students are encouraged to bring questions, change their minds, make counter-arguments, and voice politically unpopular positions in class. While intellectual and moral passion, as well as lively disagreement (including with the instructor) are valued, ad hominem and ad feminam attacks will not be tolerated, nor will slurs or disparagement of any group.

At three random, unannounced times during the semester (determined by the instructor before the class meets), you will be given a class discussion grade. If you happen to be absent on "your" date, you will be given one (equally unannounced) opportunity to make it up. In other words, your class discussion grade will work basically like a pop quiz grade, in order to provide incentive to keep up with readings and come to class reliably. You will be informed by email after the fact of the discussion grade for "your" class dates. (If you have to miss class for a religious observance or some other excused or excusable reason, you must notify me before the class meeting). A fourth discussion grade will awarded as a semester-long grade, and all four averaged together.
Academic Integrity, University Policies, Disability Accommodations, Late Papers

Academic dishonesty destroys trust and the good-faith work of a course. Students who get stressed about their grades or having enough time to complete an assignment are sometimes tempted to cheat—to download sections of a paper from the Internet, to borrow quotes or ideas from other students or published sources. Don’t. It’s not worth it. Chances are good you will be caught and will fail the assignment or the course. (See the UMass policy on sanctions and procedures on Academic Honesty, http://www.umass.edu/dean_students/codeofconduct/acadhonesty/#D) Cite all your sources, all the time.

Helping someone else cheat is an offense as serious as cheating yourself. Although it is always appropriate to discuss the course material and assignments with each other, inside and outside class, it is not appropriate to collaborate on the writing of actual sentences.

If you have learning or other disabilities, it is my goal and that of the Disability Services to ensure that you have reasonable accommodations that minimize the impact of that disability on your learning or your ability to demonstrate what you have learned in the context of assignments. It is your choice whether to disclose your disability to me; you can simply access services through Disability Services (http://www.umass.edu/disability/current.html) and ask me to work with that office to provide appropriate accommodations. However, you do need to let me know that you will need accommodation at or near the beginning of the semester, well in advance of any assignments. If we agree on a modified timeline for the completion of assignments or alternative formats, you are still responsible for completing assignments in a timely way and attending class.

All students are required to have a UMass email account, which will be used for all correspondence for this course. That and registration for this course will also provide access to Moodle, which we will use for supplementary course materials, e-reserves, extra credit opportunities, and to turn in assignments.

On Title IX and mandated reporting:
WGSS classes are a place where issues of sexual violence and other sexual misconduct are discussed as a matter of course. It’s not a taboo subject, and feminists have long worked to develop theory and activism around sexualized violence, including rape, dating violence, child sexual abuse, and the like. If you want to discuss your own personal experiences of sexual violence in a class, we don’t consider that a “report” covered by Title IX (although if you want faculty help and support in reporting sexual violence, we are here to help you do that). Other available resources on campus for addressing sexual violence include both confidential and non-confidential resources—non-confidential resources will keep your concerns private but will report your concerns to the Title IX coordinator, or, the Dean of Students Office who will provide you with different options to assist you. Confidential resources will keep your concerns confidential and will provide you support, assistance in addressing safety concerns as well as other services such as providing you with an advocate. The resources can be found at www.umass.edu/titleix/.

On names and pronouns:
There is a long history of dialogue and activism around how we address one another, with respect to both names and pronouns. Students should be referred to by the name they prefer, and with the proper pronunciation, by faculty and other students. I will gladly honor your request to address you by the name you prefer and gender pronouns that correspond to your gender identity. Please advise me of your name’s proper pronunciation, and any name or pronouns not reflected by the record in Spire early in the semester so that I may make appropriate changes to my records.

Week-by-Week Schedule

Week 1: What is Reproductive Justice?
Sept. 7—course overview

Sept. 12—Loretta Ross, What is Reproductive Justice?

Week 2: Abortions Under Community Control

2pp response paper: develop an argument about the struggle over abortion in the Young Lords Party: how are these the same as or different from reproductive justice politics?

Week 3: Black Panther Party, Food, Child Care, and Health Care Programs

Week 4: Foreclosure and Housing

Week 5: Foster Care: Who loses children and why?

Oct. 5—5pp paper due: Write about an aspect of reproductive justice or caring labor or raising children that you had not thought about very much before this course. Can you develop an analysis of what activism or advocacy in relation to this issue should look like?

Week 6: Welfare Mothers and other “Bad Mothers”

Kim Brooks, “The day I left my son in the car,” Slate (June 3, 2014), http://www.salon.com/2014/06/03/the_day_i_left_my_son_in_the_car/

Nina Martin, “When the Womb is a Crime Scene”

Week 7: Schools

Week 8: Black Lives and Infant Mortality
Oct. 24— read all of the website, including the policy papers: “A Vision for Black Lives Platform” https://policy.m4bl.org/
