THEORIZING GENDER, RACE, AND POWER
Fall 2014

Course Overview:
This course offers ways of analyzing and reflecting on current issues and controversies in feminist thought within an international context sensitive to gender, race, class, and sexuality, and critical of complex power dynamics. After taking the first few class meetings to review and establish foundational concepts (namely, power and intersectionality), we will focus on three thematically distinct units. This year, the themes are:

Unit 1: Who Belongs? Interrogating Nation-State, Migration, and Citizenship
Unit 2: Labour, Capital and Class, At Home and Abroad
Unit 3: Bodies that Matter? Contesting Definitions of (Un)Desirable Bodies

Within these units, we’ll examine the gender, sexual, and racial politics of national belonging and migration; housework and sex work; class and labour movements; tourism and sexual pleasure; disability and desirability; reproductive rights and justice; and intersectionality online.

Course Goals:
- Know and understand a range of feminist theories and analyses regarding the intersections of race, gender, sexuality, and class, as well as theories of power
- Identify and define key concepts in feminist theories
- Critically compare and evaluate different theories and analyses
- Use these theories to develop a critical lens through which to examine current events and goings-on beyond our classroom
- Practice and develop the abilities to lead and facilitate class discussions, and help peers to understand challenging theoretical concepts and arguments
- Hone the ability to express critical analyses in writing

Course Objectives:
- Identify and summarize key arguments in theoretical/analytical texts
- Compare and contrast arguments offered by different authors on similar subject matter or themes
- Discuss the criteria that make a theory/analysis strong/convincing or weak/unconvincing
- Evaluate the strength or weakness of a theory/analysis
- Extend concepts or analyses developed in a theory to critically examine other relevant “real world” contexts

Course Structure:
Each class will begin with a discussion of the readings, led by two students. These students will be responsible for preparing questions to guide us through the readings, which they will circulate to the rest of the class at least 24 hours before we meet. Everyone is responsible for doing the readings, consulting the questions, and being prepared to discuss them. Student-led discussion will last for 45-50 minutes.
For the remainder of our class meetings, we will engage in activities that will prepare us for the next class’s readings.

Required Texts:
The vast majority of readings are available via UMass libraries’ E-reserves system; please see the attached information sheet regarding how to access E-reserves. A few readings will be available online; please see the links to the relevant websites in the syllabus. Finally, there is one film to watch as homework; please see Moodle to access the link to watch the film, which can be streamed online.

Grade Breakdown:
Attendance and Participation: 30%
Writing Assignments: 70% (in total)

Attendance and Participation (30%):
Everyone is expected to attend all class meetings with the reading completed and thoughts on questions prepared. You will also present a week’s worth of readings as part of a pair twice in the term; that is, you will sign up to present two different weeks’ worth of readings. Presenting the readings involves preparing questions for discussion and facilitating discussion as a team of two. Please consult the “Guidelines for Leading Discussion” for advice on how to prepare for the discussion.

I believe that our class meetings constitute important sites of learning and intellectual development; consequently, I take preparation for class meetings rather seriously! If you have to miss a class, please be sure to email me, preferably beforehand. If you miss more than two classes, please arrange to meet with me in order to discuss how to make up the work missed.

Writing Assignments and Due Dates (70%):
Over the course of the term, we will complete a variety of writing assignments that will employ a range of formal and informal writing styles. Please feel free to consult with me, or with The Writing Center, for assistance with your papers [http://www.umass.edu/writingcenter/].

Throughout the term, you will maintain a class journal. You are expected to write one double-spaced page per week (two pages max). This writing is meant to be informal, and provides you the opportunity to record your thoughts and reflections about the readings. You will submit the class journal periodically—specifically, on the same due dates as your quiz and papers, to minimize the number of dates you have to remember. Journals will be evaluated based on their completion, and on evidence of engagement and thoughtful reflection upon the readings. The final journals must submitted with Unit 3 Paper.

There will be one quiz towards the beginning of the term that will allow you to demonstrate your knowledge of the concepts we discuss in the first few weeks.

Additionally, there will be three papers (one per unit). Each paper will be 5-6 pages long, double-spaced, with one-inch margins. You will receive assignment prompts two weeks in advance.

Here is a quick summary of the assignments, their value, and their due date:

Quiz: Defining Key Concepts (5%) -- Sept. 22 [in class]
Unit 1 Paper (20%) -- Oct. 17 [Friday, due via email by 5pm EST]
Unit 2 Paper (20%) – Nov. 14 [Friday, due via email by 5pm EST]
Unit 3 Paper (20%) – Dec. 12 [Friday, due via email by 5pm EST]
Course Journal (5%) – submit on Sept. 22, Oct. 17, and Nov. 14; the final is due on Dec. 12 [Friday, due via email by 5pm EST]
Students with Disabilities: To arrange accommodation, please contact Disability Services (http://www.umass.edu/disability/index.html).

Academic Dishonesty: This course follows the university guidelines for academic honesty. According to the Dean of Students Office, academic dishonesty is the attempt to secure unfair advantage for oneself or another in any academic exercise. For our course, this includes plagiarism and facilitating dishonesty. If you have any questions about what constitutes academic dishonesty and require further information regarding the Dean of Students’ policy, please see http://www.umass.edu/dean_students/codeofconduct/acadhonesty/#A
