"Arctic Research Immersion at Svalbard's Icy Margins"

Prof. Julie Brigham-Grette, Geosciences, UMass Amherst

The National Science Foundation's REU (Research Experience for Undergraduates) sponsors six U.S. undergraduates to do fieldwork each summer in Svalbard, Norway, where they explore how high-latitude glaciers, melt-water streams, and sedimentation in lakes and fjords respond to changing climate. Hear about the 2009 field season in Kongsfjorden.
