Definition of University of Massachusetts Amherst Related International Travel

As Approved by the International Risk Management Committee, May 2016 UPDATED November 2021

Purpose

This document defines University of Massachusetts Amherst Related International Travel (UMARIT) as it pertains to undergraduate and graduate students, faculty, staff, and designated volunteers (on programs approved by the International Programs Office).

Activity

International travel is considered UMARIT if one or more of the following applies:

- The travel is in the course and scope of their employment at UMass Amherst.
- It is financed, in full or part, through UMass funding, scholarship, or sponsorship.
- It is credit-bearing or the travel is necessary for meeting a course or degree requirement, including graduate research at UMass.
- It is sponsored, arranged, endorsed, promoted, or administered by the university, or by university faculty or staff members.
- The travel is directly related to a UMass sponsored grant or contract.
- Travel supporting an educational activity by a registered student organization affiliated with or representing UMass such as a graduate student organization (GSO) or any established student organization (ESO) (i.e. undergraduate registered student organizations and agencies)
- The traveler will be performing university-related work remotely on a regular basis
- The traveler will be traveling with university owned equipment (e.g. laptop, phone, etc.) and is traveling to one or more of the following countries, which are subject to U.S. Government-implemented restrictions: China, Cuba, Iran, North Korea, Russia, Syria, Ukraine, and Venezuela (this list is subject to change as U.S. Government sanctions and regulations evolve)

All UMass Amherst Related International Travel must be approved by the appropriate supervisor, faculty advisor, or other designee.

Approval and Registration

Under the policy on international travel registration, all faculty, staff and graduate students are strongly encouraged to register international travel – in support of University risk management and emergency response initiatives. Undergraduate students are required to register all university-related international travel.

UMass Amherst Related International Travel (UMARIT) Guidelines

When UMARIT is pre-approved and registered, it makes a stronger case that the traveler is eligible for UMass International Emergency Insurance benefits. The registration of UMARIT includes an approval by the traveler's supervisor or designee. The approval of UMARIT establishes that the international travel is university-related, and that the traveler's duties will be covered or replaced during their absence.

Whereas travel is considered UMARIT if the program or activity abroad is recommended to a student by a member of UMass faculty or staff or if the program or activity was promoted on an approved, university-controlled board or display, faculty/staff/departments should follow these guidelines:

- Departments should be vigilant about displaying only approved advertisements on any department-controlled or operated bulletin boards or displays.
- Faculty or staff should consult the International Programs Office prior to recommending a study abroad program or activity for non-academic vetting of the program location and company, and to determine that the program is the best option based on the student's personal and academic goals and financial situation.
- Faculty or staff should not forward e-mails about international travel/study/volunteer opportunities to students or invite travel/study/volunteer organizations to present in their classrooms or on university property without first consulting with IPO

Below are examples that can help illustrate and clarify the definition of UMass Amherst Related International Travel.

1. A faculty member leading a group of UMass students on a short-term study abroad program to Brazil.
 - a. This is UMARIT. The travel is credit bearing and is actively arranged by UMass faculty.
2. An alumni member traveling with the UMass Chamber Choir to Italy for a concert tour.
 - a. This is UMARIT if the alumni member is serving in an approved volunteer capacity.
3. A faculty member on a mission trip to Ghana unrelated to their field.
 - a. This is not UMARIT. The faculty member is working outside the scope of their employment without university funds.
4. An environmental conservation faculty member (or graduate student) traveling to Kiribati for research.
 - a. This is UMARIT. The faculty member is conducting research within the scope of their employment or field of study.
5. A MPPA student completing a field work assignment in Nepal as part of a UMass course.
 - a. This is UMARIT. The field work is necessary to meet a course requirement.
