Because the Registrar's Office is so busy, it may take time for new information to appear on SPIRE.

COMPOSITION & ARRANGING

Fall 2019

Music 586 – MIDI Studio Tech (3 credits)
Required for M.M. in Composition
Mon, 5:30 – 8:30, FAC 444

Sibley-Schwartz

This course provides a comprehensive introduction to computer music, with a focus on studio techniques for computer music composition, performance, and recording, as well as an overview of the history of electronic music.

The required text is Curtis Roads' The Computer Music Tutorial (1999). We will use the object oriented software Max/MSP to build virtual electronic musical instruments and prototypes from the textbook. Apple's Logic Pro music production software will also be used extensively throughout the course. Topics covered include ring modulation, amplitude modulation, FM synthesis, additive synthesis, sampling, filtering, compression, effects processing, step sequencing, multitrack recording and mixing, Fourier transform, syncing sound to digital video, techniques for live electronic music performance. We will study the compositions and techniques of electronic music pioneers such as Vladimir Ussachevsky, Otto Luening, Edgard Varese, Mario Davidovsky, Bruno Maderna, Milton Babbitt, Charles Dodge, John Chowning, Pierre Boulez, Gareth Loy, and others. Listening assignments include over 25 compositions from early electronic music to the present day. The course is designed to provide a thorough understanding of computer music, with relevance to graduate-level music students of all concentrations. Coursework includes weekly studio assignments, listening assignments, readings from the textbook and supplemental articles. There is a midterm studio project, a research project, a final studio project, midterm and final exams. The studio assignments allow the student to demonstrate his or her understanding of the various techniques and concepts covered in class. Research projects can include writing and performing an original electro-acoustic composition in a student recital, research on music "apps" for mobile computing, an analysis and presentation of a computer music composition from the repertoire, or other related areas of interest to the student. Final grade will be based on participation, completion of all assignments, and results of exams.

Spring 2020

MUS 520: Music Composition for Visual Media (3 credits)
*Required: Jazz Composition and Arranging majors (can substitute for MUS 585/586)
May be used as an elective by other graduate students.
Weds, 4:40 – 7:30, FAC 150

Salles

This course is designed primarily for MM Jazz Composition and Arranging students. It is open as an elective to graduate students in other areas who possess a thorough knowledge of composition and orchestration, and software notation skills. This is a project based course on writing music for visual media. It involves the study of the work of industry standard compositions in three visual media areas, TV commercials, cartoons, and film. Students will analyze music for its emotional and visual impact and compose music for film/video projects. This class is dependent on the student ability to use Sibelius 4 or above notation software. Purchase of the software is mandatory. Finale 2007 and above is acceptable. Experience with Protools, Logic or Digital Performer software is desirable. Class work will take the form of three projects, a research presentation, readings and discussions. The final project will involve the use of virtual (and studio recorded real instruments where possible) in a cross platform integration of Sibelius/Finale, MIDI/Virtual Sounds and Logic.

CONDUCTING

Fall 2019

Music 697C Seminar in Choral Conducting I (2 credits) Thornton
Tue/Thur., 9:30 – 10:45, FAC 253

An intensive study of applied conducting and choral rehearsal techniques. Emphasis is placed on score study, score reading, rehearsal planning and preparation, and on strengthening the aural and gestural skills of the conductor. The rehearsal techniques component of the course will cover such topics as the choral warm-up, ensemble diction, and exercises to develop choral sound specifically appropriate to the repertoire of various style periods and composers.

Music 697E Seminar in Choral Conducting III (2 credits) Thornton
Tue/Thur., 9:30 – 10:45, FAC 253
A continuation of Music 697D.

Music 697 I, Sec 1 Advanced Instrumental Conducting (3 credits) Nakahara
See instructor for Day/Time

Music 697 I, Sec 2 Advanced Instrumental Conducting (3 credits) Westgate/Anderson
Tue/Thur., 9:30 – 10:45, George Parks 101

This course is designed as a pedagogy and repertoire seminar for graduate wind conducting majors, but may be taken by other graduate students with instructor permission. This course is primarily dedicated to develop: 1) advanced physical conducting techniques, 2) methods for programming at the middle school, high school, and collegiate levels, 3) an advanced knowledge of core, traditional, and obscure large wind ensemble and chamber wind ensemble repertoire, and 4) teach advanced score study methodologies and techniques.

One large project with a paper and multimedia presentation are required, as well as frequent in-class debates and ad hoc assignments centered on current trends in conducting pedagogy and music education. This course usually has one or two lab sessions outside of the normal meeting time where students conduct various ensembles. Finally, this course deals with trends in secondary schools, colleges, and universities as they pertain to wind band program development, recruiting, and management. A primary objective for this course is to prepare MM wind conducting students for future doctoral study in conducting, secondary teaching, or university teaching.

Music 697J Orchestral Conducting & Literature (2 credits) Nakahara
Tue/Thur., 9:30 – 10:45, FAC 353

Music 697L Orchestral Conducting & Literature (2 credits) Nakahara
See instructor for Day/Time

A continuation of Music 697K.

Music 697N Seminar in Wind Conducting I (2 credits)

Westgate

See instructor for Day/Time

This course is designed only for MM wind conducting majors in their first semester of applied study. Applied lessons in conducting will focus on all aspects of conducting skills, with emphasis on score reading, sight singing, score study, history of the wind and percussion genre, and development of physical conducting techniques.

Music 697 P Seminar in Wind Conducting III (2 credits)

Westgate

See instructor for Day/Time

This course is designed only for MM wind conducting majors in their third semester of applied study. This course is a continuation of Music 697O.

Spring 2020Music 697D Seminar in Choral Conducting II (2 credits)

Thornton

An intensive study of applied conducting and choral literature. A continuation of the conducting skills learned in Music 697C. The choral literature component of the course will survey a broad range of repertoire from Gregorian chant, major works with orchestra, and choral miniatures.

Music 697F Seminar in Choral Conducting IV (2 credits)

Thornton

A continuation of Music 697E.

Music 697 I Advanced Instrumental Conducting (3 credits)

Westgate/Anderson

Tuesday and Thursday, 9:30-10:45 (conference room)

This course is designed as a pedagogy and repertoire seminar for graduate wind conducting majors, but may be taken by other graduate students with instructor permission. This course is primarily dedicated to develop: 1) advanced physical conducting techniques, 2) methods for programming at the middle school, high school, and collegiate levels, 3) an advanced knowledge of core, traditional, and obscure large wind ensemble and chamber wind ensemble repertoire, and 4) teach advanced score study methodologies and techniques.

Music 697O Seminar in Wind Conducting (2 credits)

Westgate

This course is designed only for MM wind conducting majors in their second semester of applied study. Applied lessons in conducting will focus on all aspects of conducting skills, with emphasis on score reading, sight singing, score study, history of the wind and percussion genre, and development of physical conducting techniques.

Music 697 Q Seminar in Wind Conducting (2 credits)

Westgate

This course is designed only for MM wind conducting majors in their fourth semester of applied study. This course is a continuation of MUS697N and O.

PIANO

Spring 2020

Music 592K Survey of Keyboard Chamber Music (2 credits)

Vonsattel

See instructor for Day/Time

This is a survey of the core repertoire of keyboard chamber music and its evolution. The course begins with the Haydn piano trios and proceeds chronologically, ending with the Bartók Sonata for Two Pianos and Percussion. Materials will be on reserve or available in pdf files. Coursework consists of a major collaborative paper and oral presentation on a broad topic (e.g., comparison of the slow movements of the Brahms piano quartets).

MUSIC HISTORY

Fall 2019

MUS 593S: The History of Styles in Western Music (3 credits)

Ritchey

Mon/Wed, 11:55 a.m. – 1:10 p.m., FAC 155

Students failing two or more sections on the Diagnostic Examination in Music History are strongly encouraged to enroll in this course. Note: Mus593S may be used for Graduate Music History “Common Core” Requirement

This course provides an intensive survey of the styles of Western music throughout history, with a focus on exploring great musical works and their historical contexts. Through this course, students will be able to describe, analyze, and distinguish among the major forms, genres, and artistic periods from antiquity to the present day. The course will center on the close study of significant works that are part of the established canon of Western art music. Students will become deeply familiar with important scores by composers, including (but not limited to) Machaut, Du Fay, Josquin, Palestrina, Monteverdi, J.S. Bach, Handel, Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Verdi, Wagner, Mahler, Debussy, Schoenberg, and Stravinsky. Students will complete brief writing assignments, listening activities, class presentations, and two take-home exams, all of which will aid them in listening closely and critically to music. The main text for this course will be Douglas Seaton, Ideas and Styles in the Western Musical Tradition (New York: Oxford University Press, 2010).

Music 595J: Seminar - History of Jazz (3 credits)

Tomita

Required for jazz composition/arranging concentrators; Elective credit only for other grad students

Mon., 4:40 – 7:10 p.m. FAC 155

The History of Jazz (595J) covers all major stylistic periods of jazz from its 19th century origins through modern practices of the early 21st century. Readings and in-class presentations, performances and discussions are an integral part of the course, culminating with a research paper.

Music 600: Bibliography (3 credits)

Ricciardi

Required: MM in Musicology and Music Theory; Ph.D. in Music Theory

Thur., 5:00 – 7:30pm, FAC 157

This course is designed so that you become familiar with research methods and materials in music; learn about and evaluate bibliographies, catalogues, databases, dictionaries, discographies, indexes, music editions, and other sources, especially online sources; conduct research and write about music in a scholarly manner; and give clear and well-organized presentations. Other topics may include creating documents for professional development (e.g., curriculum vitae, cover letters, etc.), computer applications (e.g., MS Word, EndNote, etc.), and copyright law. Grading is based on weekly written assignments, in-class presentations, a midterm, and a final project.

Required texts: The Chicago Manual of Style, 16th ed. (Chicago and London: University of Chicago Press, 2010); Laurie Sampsel, Music Research: A Handbook (Oxford and New York: Oxford University Press, 2008).
Recommended texts: Strunk and White, The Elements of Style, 4th ed. (New York: Longman, 2000 [1935]); D. Kern Holoman, *Writing about Music: A Style Sheet, 2nd ed. (Berkeley: University of California Press, 2008).

MUS 645: History of Opera (3 credits)

Knyt

May be used for Graduate Music History “Common Core” Requirement
Mon/Wed, 5:45 – 7:00 p.m., FAC 152

As the curtains rise and the singers and instruments begin to perform, the audience is ushered into an “operatic world” comprised of dramaturgy, acting, scenery, costumes, and music. That “world” is an event, the dynamics of which are created by particular singers, directors, musicians, and costumes in relation to specific halls, audiences, languages, and cultures. This course, which aims to provide a survey of major developments in operatic literature from 1700-the present will take into account factors, such as dramaturgy, form, compositional procedures, libretti, singing roles and voice types. It will also explore elements that influenced how the “operatic world” is and was experienced in original and subsequent performances.

Relying on Roger Parker’s The Oxford Illustrated History of Opera and Pierro Weiss’s Opera: A History in Documents in conjunction with recordings, primary documents and secondary articles, the course seeks to offer a vivid view not only of the major characteristics of canonic operatic masterpieces, but also the social culture surrounding their production and reception. In addition to regular class participation and completion of weekly reading/listening assignments, students will also be expected to prepare a final research paper (10-15 pages) or other creative project that contributes new knowledge to scholarship and give an end-of class presentation.

Music 649: Entrepreneurship in Music

Ritchey

May count towards graduate academic “common core”
Mon/Wed, 8:30 – 9:45 a.m., FAC 150

In this class, we will trace the rise of entrepreneurship in musical practice and discourse from the nineteenth century to today. While the focus of the class will be on music, we will also read quite a bit of work from other disciplines, like political economy and cultural theory. We will delve into the frightening world of managerial literature in an effort to trace the changes in business values that have characterized recent transformations in U.S. capitalism. You will learn about Marxism and socialism, liberalism and neoliberalism, and, perhaps surprisingly, the Protestant Reformation.

This is not a seminar aimed to teach “entrepreneurship skills.” Rather, this class will take a historical, critical, theoretical look at entrepreneurship as a cultural value. By the end of the semester, you will know what entrepreneurship is and why it came to the forefront of the national conversation, and you will be well-versed in the scholarship and business theory surrounding the topic.

Spring 2020

Music 601: Seminar--Research in Music History (3 credits)

TBD

Pre-requisite: Music 600 or the equivalent

May count towards graduate academic "Common Core"

Required of all MM—Music History Majors (MM—Music Theory and others preparing to write theses are also welcome).

See instructor for Day/Time

This seminar will provide a forum for the development of musicological "craft;" exposure to a broad spectrum of "genres" of musicology; discussion of foreign language issues, as appropriate to research areas; discussion of interdisciplinary issues, as appropriate to research areas; exploration of potential MM thesis topics; creation of an annotated bibliography on a potential thesis topic; creation of a research report on a potential thesis topic; creation of a prospectus for a thesis; and progress towards admission to an appropriate doctoral program or other career objective. Readings will provide examples of traditional historical musicology as well as applications to wider repertoires and broader currents, such as criticism, interdisciplinary musicology, and theoretical issues. Students will (a) engage the readings and participate actively in the discussions; (b) create weekly 1-2-page critical response papers; and (c) lay the foundations for a research project which could evolve into an MM thesis, including a research report and a prospectus. The main text will be Alistair Williams, Constructing Musicology (Burlington, 2001).

MUSIC 642: Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven—Classical Style and the Age of the Enlightenment

Knyt

May count towards graduate academic "Common Core"

The Age of Enlightenment was a historical period characterized by quests for rational, scientific, and objective understandings of the world, social structures, and communities. During this age, a growing fascination with peoples of different cultures, of the ordinary man, of structure, balance, and order, informed many of the scientific, literary, musical, philosophical, and cultural pursuits. This was also the age of Haydn, Mozart, and Beethoven. Taking the Enlightenment as its point of departure, this course shows connections between ideals of the age and the roughly contemporaneous Classical Style in music. It explores how these ideals relate to the origin and codification of malleable, yet nevertheless relatively orderly sets of formal procedures, forms, and genres (such as the sonata, the symphony, the string quartet, and opera buffa), changes in opera roles and plots (ordinary characters interact with upper classes), and quests for order in relation to tonal, thematic, rhythmic, and structural contrasts.

The course aims to present a survey of the major genres, forms, and styles associated with the so-called Classical Period as well as more detailed explorations of the individualized ways Haydn, Mozart, and Beethoven assimilated and exhibited Classical traits in their compositions. It also aims to show how Enlightenment ideals in their varied philosophical, literary, artistic, political, and/or social manifestations coincided with and/or informed the Classical style. Upon completion of this course, students should be able to identify and articulate the main philosophical ideals of Enlightenment, the main characteristics of the Classical style, and to think critically about how these ideas and styles were assimilated in an individual manner by composers. Students will complete weekly reading assignments, two in-class quizzes, and a 10-20 page research paper.

Music 646: The Italian Madrigal (3 credits)

Ricciardi

May count towards graduate academic "Common Core"

Tuesday, 5:30-8:00 p.m., FAC 157

In the course, we will study the Italian madrigal of the 16th and early 17th centuries from a variety of perspectives. By focusing on the works of its most representative practitioners, such as Rore, Marenzio, Gesualdo, and Monteverdi, we will investigate how the compositional practices associated with this genre changed over time. We will devote special attention to the ways in which composers responded to features of the poetic texts, such as form and topic. Furthermore, we will examine how the production and consumption of madrigals related to cultural and literary trends as well as to the burgeoning market of musical and literary prints. The course will include also a unit on notation, in which we will learn how to read original notation and translate it in modern equivalents.

MUSIC EDUCATION

Fall 2019

MusEd 602: Innovation in Music Education (2 credits)

TBA

Wed., 5:30 – 7:30 p.m., FAC 365

*Required for Music Ed. Ph.D. May count towards Graduate academic “Common Core”

MusEd 603: Introduction to Music Education Research (2 credits)

Lehmberg

Thur., 4:30 – 5:30 p.m., FAC 365

*Required for Music Ed. Ph.D. May count towards Graduate academic “Common Core”

MusEd 631: Seminar in Music Education Research (2 credits)

Lehmberg

Thur., 5:45 – 7:15 p.m., FAC 365

*Required for Music Ed. Ph.D. May count towards Graduate academic “Common Core”

Spring 2020

MusEd 690x: Measurement and Evaluation in Music Education

Paparo

*Recommended for Music Ed. M.M./Ph.D. students

May count towards Graduate academic “Common Core”

Thursday, 5:30-8:00 p.m., FAC 157

This course is designed to help students critically examine the influences of culture, socioeconomic status, developmental level, and temperament on music teaching and learning. Course material is presented through relevant, professional-world learning experiences that enable students to acquire the knowledge necessary to effectively facilitate music learning experiences for diverse populations of students.

MusED 791C: College Music Curriculum (3 credits)

TBD

*Required for Music Ed. Ph.D. May count for core academic credit.

Wednesday, 5:30-8:00 p.m., FAC 157

This course concentrates on the issues involved in developing music curricula for students in grades K-12 and in music teacher education programs. Together we will explore what we teach, why we teach, and how we teach through historical, philosophical, psychological, and sociological lenses, and gain a deeper understanding of educational policy and its impact on school curricula. Students will examine and evaluate existing frameworks, assessment tools, and instructional strategies; complete fieldwork; and design their own individualized curriculum unit/project.

MUSIC THEORY

Fall 2019

MUSIC 493A/493B: Graduate Theory Review (no credit towards graduate degree)

Taycher

M/W/F 8:00 – 8:50 a.m., FAC 157

Course access is determined by the results of the Graduate Diagnostic Examination in Music Theory. Required for all entering graduate students who did not pass one or more sections of the diagnostic exam.

MUSIC 691E: General Readings in Music Theory (3 credits)

Auerbach

Required for MM Music Theory; Elective credit only for all other graduate students

Tue. 2:30 – 5:00 p.m., FAC 155

Music 691E is designed primarily for MM students in music theory. It is open as an elective to graduate students in other areas who possess a thorough knowledge of musical form and have fully mastered chromatic harmony and voice leading. The goal of this course is to further familiarize theory students with the major trends in 20th century music theory, primarily through close reading of seminal sources. Topics will include: Schenkerian Analysis, semiotics, GMT, neo-Riemannian analysis (including Tonnetze), scale-theory, theories of form, and theory/analysis of 20th-century Music. Also to be considered will be larger issues such as: the recent rise of theory as a discipline in the U.S., the "scientific image" of music theory, and the relationship of theory to the larger enterprise of making/understanding music. (The direction of the class will be shaped in part by the experience levels and interests of seminar participants.)

Class work will take the form of involve significant reading assignments, discussion, research presentations, occasional response papers and analyses, and a final oral exam administered by a committee of the theory faculty.

MUSIC 690W: Analysis of Pop and Rock Music (3 credits)

White

May be used for Graduate Music Theory "Common Core" Requirement

Thur. 2:30 – 5:30 p.m., FAC 157

Popular music is a repertoire. While in some ways its inner workings may seem simpler than Western Classical music, its musical materials can be extremely complex and varied. This becomes especially true when considering the music materials' interactions with their cultural surroundings and means of social production. This class will balance musical analysis with this social theory, delving into rock's compositional norms (harmony, syntax, rhythms, and the like) while asking why these choices are made. Most readings will focus on analyzing the actual notes of popular music, peaking under the hood to better understand the harmony, syntax and style of this music. These readings will be supplemented with studies devoted to issues surrounding the production and consumption of pop music. Overall, we will attempt to connect cultural issues with the actual musical material used in popular music while reflecting on the fundamental difficulties surrounding making such connections.

MUSIC 691K: Post-Tonal Theory (3 credits)

White

May be used for Graduate Music Theory "Common Core" Requirement

Tue./Thur., 9:30 – 10:45 p.m., FAC 157

This course will familiarize students with theories and techniques of analysis for music written since approximately 1900. Topics will include pitch-class set theory, pitch centricity, serialism, transformation theory, and perspectives on rhythm, meter, and temporality. Regular assignments will consist of exercises applying these theories and techniques, as well as readings of important theoretical and analytical writings from the past 50 years. Major projects will include an analytical presentation and paper. Some familiarity with the basics of pitch-class set analysis will be assumed.

MUSIC 795I-01: Independent Teaching (3 credits)

Hooper

This course is open to Music Theory Doctoral Students Only. Instructor permission is required.
Days, times, and room TBA

MUSIC 798B-01: Teaching Practicum (3 credits)

Hooper

Required for students pursuing the Graduate Certificate in Music Theory Pedagogy. Instructor permission and completion of MUSIC 615 with a grade of B or higher required.
Days, times, and room TBA

Spring 2020Music 510: Counterpoint (3 credits)

White

In this course, you will learn to analyze and compose Baroque-style counterpoint, including inventions, canons, and fugues. We will read historical as well as current thinking on this repertoire, we will study the compositions of such composers as Bach, Handel, and Buxtehude, and we will learn to write model compositions within this style.

MUSIC 690H: Analysis of Music with Text (3 credits; this course is pending approval)

White

May be used for Graduate Music Theory “Common Core” Requirement
Tue./Thur., 9:30 – 10:45 p.m., FAC 157

This course focuses on how to approach and analyze music with text, studying both specific repertoires and the theory behind creating meaning across two conceptual and expressive domains. To that end, the course will divide into three units corresponding to three repertoires (German Lieder, Popular and Broadway song, and religious song), outlining the normative practices of that repertoire, reading analyses of that repertoire, and studying specific pieces.

MUSIC 691M: Motivic Analysis (3 credits)

Auerbach

May be used for Graduate Music Theory “Common Core” Requirement
Mon., 5:00 – 7:30 p.m., FAC 157

An in-depth exploration of how motives and motivic thinking have shaped musical works and compositional approaches across a variety of different styles, genres, and musical languages, as well as a general survey and critique of current analytical methods. Weekly readings and analytical assignments will be given. Students will be required to give two in-class, 30-minute presentations and submit a final paper (15-18 pages) on a topic or work of their choice.

MUSIC 691S: Schenkerian Analysis (3 credits)

Karpinski

May be used for the Graduate Music Theory “Common Core” Requirement
Thur., 2:30–5:00 p.m., FAC 157

This course offers a window into the organic life of tonal music. The principles behind Schenkerian theory are often quite simple; the application of those principles through analysis is subtle and requires much practice. Therefore, our work this semester will focus on the practical application of Schenkerian techniques in analysis, rather than theoretical issues. There will be weekly analysis assignments devoted to learning the following topics and techniques (among others): species counterpoint and its relationship to free composition, rhythmic reduction, the imaginary continuo, melodic fluency, prolongation, linear progressions, fundamental structure, interruption, initial and arpeggiated ascents, reaching over, unfolding, motion into and out of an inner voice, the dividing dominant, auxiliary cadences, VII unfolding to V, mode mixture, and the chromaticized voice exchange. Emphasis is on the analysis of tonal music from roughly J.S. Bach to Brahms.

MUSIC 795I-01: Independent Teaching (3 credits)

Hooper

This course is open to Music Theory Doctoral Students Only. Instructor permission is required.

APPLIED LESSONS

*When lessons are taken for more than one semester, the MusicApp number remains the same.

*Students will receive 12 lessons per semester.

*All students taking applied lessons must be concurrently enrolled in a large ensemble.

MusicApp 516 (1 credit: 25 minute lesson)

Elective Lesson: Open to graduate non-music majors by audition only (Example: a Biology graduate student who is also playing in a large ensemble).

MusicApp 517 (2 credits: 50 minute lesson)

Required Lesson in MM in Music Education's "Applied Music Program":

Open to Theory, History, Conducting, and Composition concentrators by audition only. Reserved for principle instrument study. Also available to 5th year non-performance music major undergraduates.

MusicApp 519 (1 credit: 25 minute lesson)

Elective Lesson: Open to graduate music majors by audition only. Reserved for secondary instrument study. (Example: a graduate piano major who also wants to take violin lessons.)

MusicApp 618 (4 credits: 50 minute lesson)

Required Lesson: Graduate Performance majors only.

JURY REQUIREMENTS

for All Graduate Students Taking Lessons

All graduate students enrolled in applied lessons are required to perform annually at an area jury (normally in May), except at the end of the semester in which the degree recital has been performed. Preliminary permission for all graduate recitals, whether satisfying a degree requirement or not, must be granted by the area jury. These juries take place in December and May. Please note: permission to perform the degree recital is normally granted at the May jury at the end of the first year of study. This is to the student's advantage since a recital date cannot be reserved until recital permission has been granted.

ENSEMBLE PARTICIPATION

for All Graduate Students Taking Lessons

Every student who is enrolled in an applied lesson must be concurrently enrolled in a large ensemble as specified in the Departmental Ensemble Requirements unless excused from this requirement by the Chair of the Department of Music and Dance.

CHAMBER MUSIC

Students involved in "classical" chamber groups should enroll in Music 551, 552, 553, and/or 593C for 1 credit for each section. A student may enroll in any of these numbers, and can receive credit for a maximum of three different chamber groups per semester. Please note: 593C is reserved for string chamber music.

Each chamber group meets a minimum of 50 minutes per week with their faculty or graduate teaching assistant coach and 50 minutes per week on their own. In an effort to make space available for chamber rehearsals, Tuesday and Thursday 12–12:50 have been designated as chamber music hours and rooms have been set aside in the schedule for this purpose. Students and faculty may reserve a room for their coached and uncoached sessions by arrangement with the Facilities Manager at the beginning of each semester. Chamber music ensembles receiving credit under MUSIC 551-553 or MUSIC 593C must perform at least once on a studio recital, a Tuesday Morning Recital, a University evening concert, or a public off-campus concert.

SPECIAL TOPICS and INDEPENDENT STUDY

If you elect to pursue a Special Topics or Independent Study course, it is critically important that you create a clear set of goals and deadlines and determine how many credits the work will count for. These should be included in the course request form under "course content". The course request forms, with the required signatures and a description of the work to be undertaken, should be submitted at the beginning of the semester. During the semester, you must stay in close contact with your supervising instructor regarding your progress through the course and immediately alert your instructor if you experience any problems meeting the deadlines.

Music 697: Special Topics (1-3 credits)

Available for 1-3 variable credits. Provides an opportunity to pursue a topic that cannot be completed through enrollment in an established course. Requires a “Request for Admission to Music 697 Special Topics” form to be completely filled out with proposed course content, justification and the signatures of the student, the faculty

Music 697B: Special Topics (1-3 credits)

Available for 1-3 variable credits. Provides an opportunity to pursue a topic that cannot be completed through enrollment in an established course. Requires a “Request for Admission to Music 697B Special Topics” form to be completely filled out with proposed course content, justification and the signatures of the student, the faculty sponsor and the Graduate Program Director.

Music 697A: Special Topics/Repertoire (2 credits)

Required for MM in Performance

An exploration of repertoire, history, pedagogy, and/or other topics specific to the student’s instrument or voice, designed to help prepare the graduate performance major for the Applied portion of the Masters Oral Examination. Requires a “Request for Admission to Music 697A Special Topics/Repertoire” form to be completely filled out with proposed course content, justification and the signatures of the student, the faculty sponsor and the Graduate Program Director.

Music 696: Independent Study (1-3 credits)

Available for 1-3 variable credits. It is usually used to address an area of research interest.
