To those caring for patients in these times

As a nursing student, I am in awe of how much positive impact nurses and healthcare team members can have. The world seems like such a scary place right now for so many people, especially vulnerable individuals who are sick and in need of care. That is where nurses come in- nurses make SUCH a difference to each scared, lonely patient through the simplest acts. Even when things are overwhelming and impossible, nurses find small ways to comfort and connect that make a world of difference.

I am at the very beginning of my journey as a nurse and seeing the tireless response of healthcare workers to this crisis inspires me beyond words. I hope to one day touch the lives of patients the way you do. Keep doing what you do! Fiona M. SN

To all Healthcare Providers.

Your strength is most incredible. My heart is with you.

Cheryl S., RN UMass/Amherst College of Nursing

Thank you for risking your own lives to save complete strangers. That's the definition of a hero and when I graduate, I hope to have at least an ounce of your courage and selflessness. Keep fighting the fight and we (UMass Amherst Accelerated BSN 2020) will be by your sides shortly.

Emily, C. SN.

Dear Nurses,

Thank you for your selflessness in delivering the best care to your patients. It is because of you all that I can rest assure I have chose the best profession in the world. The strength and resilience being shown in the nursing world today makes me proud, and excited to be a nursing student. We all look up to you and hope to join the fight shortly. Stay safe and healthy!
