Greetings from UMass Amherst Office of Parent Services (OPS)!
Welcome to our new families and welcome back to those continuing to support your student at UMass Amherst. We are looking forward to the quickly approaching spring semester and the arrival of students on campus. Below are some important dates and useful information for new and returning families.

Spring Move-In
Residence halls open for the spring semester on January 20 at 9 a.m. Students checking into a new assignment will pick up the room key at their Residential Service Desk between 9 a.m. and 10 p.m. Any student interested in Early Arrival may contact Residential Life Student Services at 413-545-2100 or living@umass.edu to move in as early as January 18. All students must receive approval to move in early, and will be charged a $120 Early Arrival fee.

Please allow additional time on Sunday to complete your student's move in. Travel routes on campus will be altered in high traffic areas that day. Review the Move-In website for more information before arriving.

Student's returning to the same assignment for spring need to bring their key and UCard. Students who have lost either or both should immediately contact Residential Life Student Services at (413) 545-2100 so a new key can be available when they arrive on campus. Students who are returning to the same room will be expected to complete a Spring Check-In on SPIRE to confirm their plans.

Inclement Weather during Move-In
There is a potential for freezing rain or snow on Sunday. Please be mindful of the weather forecast as you make your move-in plans and remember, students can move-in on Monday as well. Residential Service Desks will be open from 9 a.m.-10 p.m. for any student checking into a new assignment. Students will receive more Move-In information via email to their student account.

FAFSA form reminder
All students who hope to obtain financial assistance must complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) each year. The form is available online at www.fafsa.ed.gov. Students should file their FAFSA by mid-February to meet the March 1 priority deadline. Refer to our timely topic article for the 2019–2020 Financial Aid Process Timeline and share that information with your student.

Taxes and the 1098-T
As tax season arrives, be sure your student has access to tax forms. To assist students and families in filing their 2018 taxes, the university issues form 1098-T. This contains important information related to tuition and other qualifying educational expenses that were billed to students in the 2018 tax year. Statements are available to students online through SPIRE, in the Finances section. Students who do not request online access to their 1098-T forms will have forms mailed to their permanent addresses, postmarked no later than January 31. For more information on these important documents, visit the Bursar's information page.

Starting February 5, the Isenberg School of Management will offer income tax preparation assistance to domestic and international students. For more information, visit the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance website.

Strategies for a successful spring semester
Hopefully your student had a successful fall semester. If they struggled with academics, have an honest conversation with them to determine why there were problems, and encourage them to access campus resources early in the spring semester. It is common for college students to experience one semester of academic difficulty, but with careful planning and by using the strategies below, they can improve.

- Set goals: Encourage them to make a list of their academic goals so they can assess progress. Weekly lists are helpful in achieving both short and long-term goals.
Create a timeline and use a planner: Once they know their goals, they need to prioritize by making a timeline. They should pay attention to projects that require more time and effort, that are time sensitive and more demanding, or classes they do not understand as easily.

Minimize distractions: Phone, TV, video games, loud music, and a cozy residence hall room can become distractions. Students should block off a certain time of the day to check texts and emails. Additionally, they should avoid watching TV or lying down while studying.

Avoid procrastination: Some students have the tendency to put things off until later. They should instead strategize ways to approach and complete their assignments/projects as soon as they receive them, even if they are busy with previously assigned work.

Avoid multi-tasking: Instead of switching back and forth from one task to the other, encourage your student to split up their tasks and complete them one at a time so that each task has their full attention.

Establish a positive and productive work environment: If your student needs absolute quiet to study, they should use the library or a study lounge instead of a coffee shop so they can fully concentrate on the task at hand.

Attend classes: Encourage your student to start the new year on the right foot by not only attending all class meetings regularly but also by participating and taking notes in class.

Spring semester is an opportunity for students, regardless of their academic classification, to start fresh. As your student returns to campus, encourage them to continue to:

- Take advantage of campus resources and build rapport with their advisor and professors. They can visit the Learning Resource Center for tutoring and the Writing Center for help writing papers. To find information on coping with anxiety, depression, homesickness, and more, they should visit the Center for Counseling and Psychological Health’s website. University Health Services is also available if your student is ill, and Disability Services can help secure appropriate accommodations.
- Get involved in student activities, clubs, athletics, and student events this spring to interact with others, expand their horizons, and build leadership skills.
- Talk to their Exploratory Track (ET) advisor, if they haven’t declared a major. ET advisors offer a wealth of useful information for students who are undecided or considering changing majors.

For families of new students
New Students Checklist
Your student will start their UMass journey within a week. There are a few tasks they must complete before moving to campus. Please check whether they have completed each item on their new student checklist including AlcoholEdu, YIS: Your Intervention Strategies, the health benefit waiver, immunization records, and emergency alerts registration. The first two items (AlcoholEdu and YIS) are due by January 18. If they fail to complete these items, a hold may be placed on their SPIRE account, which will prevent them from registering for fall courses.

Winter Welcome Week
We have some exciting programs for the first week of classes to welcome new students, including the Winter Welcome Program on Tuesday, January 22 at 5 p.m. in the Campus Center, Marriott Center, 11th floor. Encourage your student to attend as many activities as possible to meet campus leaders, make friends, learn more about the university, and get involved. University resources will be highlighted during the first six weeks of classes. New students should visit the Winter Welcome website and 40DaysofUMass for more detailed information (e.g. activities, description, time, and location).

OPS is here for you
Whether you live down the street or across the country, the Office of Parent Services (OPS) is here to help you at every stage of your student’s college process. Every month during the academic year, OPS will send an e-newsletter to highlight key events and offer tips, advice, and UMass Amherst news relevant to you. Please visit our website for our timely topic, e-postcards, volunteer form, and places to stay when you are in the area. We also have two social media sites and a blog just for parents/family members:

- UMass Amherst Parents Facebook Page for weekly tips
- UMass Amherst Family to Family Facebook Group for opportunities to network with other families and share ideas and information
- Family to Family blog for advice from experienced families
We hope you’ll stay connected!
