Earlier this week, University of Massachusetts President Marty Meehan announced that ten UMass system faculty research projects will each receive up to $25,000 from the Technology Development Fund, which helps to commercialize scientific breakthroughs throughout the five-campus University of Massachusetts system.

Nathaniel Whitaker, department head and professor of mathematics and statistics, has been named interim dean of the College of Natural Sciences at UMass Amherst, it was announced by Provost and Senior Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs John McCarthy and Provost-elect Tricia Serio.

Ela Gezen, associate professor of German and director of German and Scandinavian Studies, has been named a 2022-23 Berlin Prize fellow by the American Academy in Berlin.

Driven by technological, societal and political change, renewable energy technologies are progressively replacing fossil fuels.

This year's full brood of four fluffy, white peregrine falcon chicks received their regional markers and federal registry leg bands, which will allow biologists to track the falcons' movements and histories over time.

Norman Sims, professor emeritus of journalism, died at home in Winchester, New Hampshire on May 15.

The university's "5-R" Institutional COVID-19 Action Plan secured the award in the Challenge's "STEM Faculty" category.

The School of Public Health and Health Sciences (SPHHS) honored a group of over 50 undergraduate and graduate students during its annual Awards Celebration held on April 30 in Old Chapel.

UMass ADVANCE is pleased to announce the inaugural faculty teams to win the ADVANCE Equitable Practices in Collaboration and Shared Decision-Making (EPiC-SD) Award.

The UMass Amherst Libraries go live June 1 with a redesigned website.

The advancement marketing and communications team recently received several Hermes Creative Awards for their work on UMass Magazine.

Saharra Dixon will present and host a virtual screening of "I'm Picking Me: Stories from Black Folks with BFRBs" on Saturday, June 4, from 11:00 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Researchers led by Cynthia Jacelon, College of Nursing, are recruiting two types of couples for a sleep self-management study.

The Inside UMass email newsletter will begin its biweekly summer schedule following the Thursday, June 2 newsletter. The subsequent issue will be distributed Thursday, June 16 and alternate Thursdays thereafter.