The MA Dept. of Public Health (MDPH) Division of Epidemiology and Immunization hosts the Local Health Internship Program, annually matching 30-40 public health graduate students to local Massachusetts health departments. The program assists students in gaining hands-on professional experience, while enabling local health departments to obtain assistance with pressing projects. Selected students work on a wide range of topical projects at the local level including environmental health, substance abuse, communicable disease case investigation, needs assessments, emergency preparedness, health education, data entry/analysis, and health policy. Accepted students have access to mentors at the state and local level and are offered the opportunity to spend time shadowing MDPH epidemiologis...

We are a national non-profit breast cancer prevention organization. We share the conversation about how exposure to toxins and chemicals in our daily lives are directly related to an increased risk of a breast cancer diagnosis. As a national organization, we manage and run six college chapters on six different campuses. The national executive board is responsible for running the organization including: attending the Natural Products Expo East and West, communicating with brands to receive safer alternative product donations, developing campaigns for our chapters, all social media, and translating new science in the field into digestible tips amongst other responsibilities.

Springfield Partners for Community Action

Our Multicultural Alzheimer’s Program provides case management for participants afflicted with the disease and for their families and caregivers, who often need support and information. The overall goal is to ensure that participants get appropriate care, and that family members know how to deal with the challenges of this disease in an appropriate manner. The program coordinator visits referred participants to help with service assessments, interpretation, and in providing information about the disease to participant and family.

The Food Bank of Western Massachusetts

Since 1982, The Food Bank of Western Massachusetts has been feeding our neighbors in need and leading the community to end hunger. We distribute food to our member agencies in Berkshire, Franklin, Hampden and Hampshire counties. These independent pantries, meal sites and shelters are on the front lines of emergency food assistance in our region, playing a crucial role helping individuals, families, seniors and children.

In addition to food distribution, we also serve as an important resource to all of our member agencies to help strengthen the emergency food network, increase their capacity, and develop long-term projects to fight the underlying causes of hunger in our community.
