

Nanotechnology & Society: Emerging Organizations, Oversight, and Public Policy Systems

September 24, 2010

8:00 AM - 4:00 PM

UMass Amherst Campus Center
Amherst Room, 10th Floor

What are the roles of public, private, and non-profit actors in the provision of policy guidance? What are the key gaps in existing processes? What are the effects of globalization, advances in computing, economic crises, and other trends on nanotechnology policymaking and oversight processes and arrangements? What can be learned from concepts of emergence and social construction that would shed light on current developments in nanotechnology policymaking?

Featuring Presentations By:

- Terry L. Medley, Global Director of Corporate Regulatory Affairs, DuPont
- Treye Thomas, Toxicologist & Chemical Hazards Program Leader, Office of Hazard Identification and Reduction, Consumer Product Safety Commission
- Rick Reibstein, Manager, Outreach and Policy, Office of Technical Assistance, Executive Office of Energy & Environmental Affairs, Commonwealth of Massachusetts
- J. Clarence Davies, Senior Fellow, Resources for the Future
- Jeff Morris, National Program Director for Nanotechnology, US Environmental Protection Agency
- Jordan Paradise, Associate Professor of Law, Seton Hall University
- Richard Sclove, Founder and Senior Fellow, The Loka Institute
- Charles L. Geraci, Jr., Coordinator, Nanotechnology Research Center, National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health National (NIOSH)
- Timothy Malloy, Professor of Law, UCLA

Registration required.

For a complete program and to register visit:
www.umass.edu/sts/nanoworkshop

Support for this workshop comes from the National Science Foundation through grant number 0531171. It is sponsored by the Center for Hierarchical Manufacturing, the Science, Technology and Society Initiative, and the Center for Public Policy and Administration.

